Mr. Dreiser on Bonuses
Sir Henri Sells It
4,000,000 Rabbits Ready
A Wall Street Story

By Arthur Brisbane

THEODORE DREISER, sincere and forceful, pours out his soul in a long letter to the editor, about low wages received by workers compared with high bonuses received by heads of great corporations. Dr. Dreiser observes "billions of dollars for those who manage, execute and build," and "merely a bare existence for those who do the work."

Some at the top have too much, perhaps, and, of course, men at the bottom have too little. The constant struggle of civilization is to raise the average.

At the same time, Mr. Dreiser, highly intelligent, knows that there are different kinds of work that call for different kinds of pay. Mr. Dreiser, for instance, can, and probably will, write a book worth a million dollars. Should he not be paid more than the man who sets the type, although that compositor may be in some ways a better man than Dreiser?

And who are men that make millions? Charles M. Schwab, one of them, was a worker in an iron foundry not so long ago. If Mr. Dreiser were at work with a pick and shovel, he would be glad to have somebody tell him where he could dig successfully for coal or gold. The man who increases profits increases employment. And in the workers' interest demands that he should be well paid. Employes of stockholders that refuse special pay for special services are foolish.

Some time ago you read in this column about the Japanese buying a year's supply of oil for their navy.

The United States oil wells supplied the oil cheaper than Uncle Sam had ever been able to buy it. And the oil was sold by the intelligent Sir Henri Deterding, head of the British-owned-and-controlled Shell Oil Co.

Thus Japan got cheap oil, a British company got the profit, and American oil wells were depleted by so many million barrels.

Day before yesterday, Uncle Sam needed 4,620,000 barrels of "bunker fuel oil," for navy yards and stations on the West Coast. Who, do you suppose, sold the oil to Uncle Sam? None other than the same energetic Sir Henri Deterding. He sold the oil, his British-owned company made the profit.

Incidentally, Uncle Sam, buying United States oil for his own navy, paid Sir Henri a great deal more than Japan paid Sir Henri for the same American oil, delivered, like Uncle Sam's oil, on the West Coast.

This may make you smile. And it may not.

What, by the way, is the matter with our high-spirited American business men, when they can't sell oil from the soil of their own country to their own government as cheaply as it can be sold, at a profit, by an intelligent Dutchman, representing English capital?

Our War Department has plans for "instant mobilization of an army of four million men in case of war."

That announcement will amuse European and Asiatic nations that would be ready for INSTANT MOBILIZATION OF FROM FIVE TO TEN THOUSAND AIRPLANES EACH, IN CASE OF WAR.

You would smile if you read "four million rabbits are ready for instant mobilization to meet an invasion of eagles." Men on the ground, attacked by airplanes, would be no better than rabbits attacked by eagles.

The President of the United States, a great engineer, might explain to somebody in the army and navy that four million men on the ground would not be of much use against flocks of airplanes above the clouds.

Wall Street's uncertainty is illustrated in this story from that financial canyon.

An energetic broker was urging his client before the "five cents profit in three months" report came out, "buy steel. I tell you I know what they are doing. You can't help making money." The client replied: "Steel is good, but I don't like it just now. I would rather sell it short." Instantly the broker replied, "Oser nicht eine schlecte idee," meaning "Not a bad idea either."

In spite of the double negative, the "oser nicht" statement was sound.

Australia has gold, and her government means to keep it. It was planned to send five million pounds of the precious gold to London, to pay money due. The Australian Senate votes, 24 to 1, to forbid gold shipments.

Strange is the power of that yellow metal. If people know that you possess it, even though you refuse to pay it out, that adds to your financial standing.

France has nearly four billions in gold, the United States nearly five billions, but it cannot prevent depressions.

Ninety-four Boston public schools are without fire escapes, according to Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, who declared today he will fight any attempt of the school building department to exempt them from the building laws.

Supt. of Schools Jeremiah E. Burke, replying to Mr. Goodwin said that a large amount of money will be spent during the coming year to place fire escapes on the older buildings which are still without them.

MANY MINUS ESCAPES

He said that Louis K. Rourke, superintendent of construction under the school house commission, did "a splendid piece of work last year" in adding fire escapes to some of the old schools.

The Boston Evening American made a survey and found many old schoolhouses containing hundreds of young children not equipped with fire escapes.

One of the old structures found by the Boston American is the Tappan school in Lexington st., East Boston, which backs up to Trenton st. This is a two-

ARMY CAPTAIN INVOLVED IN SHOOTING, SAYS WIFE

Mrs. Dunstan Springs Surprise While on Stand in Her Suit for Divorce

Mrs. Ruth H. Dunstan testified in Middlesex Probate Court today that she suspected her husband, Capt. Edwin V. Dunstan, U. S. A., of having been involved in the shooting of his brother.

The attractive Lowell and Ayer society woman also testified further to her suspicions that the West Point officer was slowly poisoning her to death.

"He had a brother who was found shot and bleeding to death," Mrs. Dunstan told the court. "There were many theories but no solution. My conclusion was that the captain was involved."

"BLOOD-COVERED HANDS."

Whether the brother was fatally shot, when and where the shooting occurred, were not made clear in testimony.

Her statement regarding the mysterious shooting was made to the court in explanation of a statement she said she made to Capt. Dunstan:

> "Your hands are now covered with blood. You are not going to have your wife's blood on your hands."

With reference to her statement in court yesterday that her husband once gave her a glass of poisoned lemonade, she was asked in cross-examination today whether she sus-

VET INDICTED IN WELFARE FRAUD

The state-wide drive against alleged abuses of municipal welfare funds today resulted in the return of secret indictments against a Winthrop veteran of the World War, charged with defrauding the town's welfare department over a period of years.

The Suffolk County grand jury, in consideration of evidence submitted by Richard P. Flynn, state commissioner of aid and pensions, returned the indictments to Judge Harold P. Williams, sitting in Superior Court.

Commissioner Flynn was assisted in his investigation by Asst. Atty. Gen. Edward T. Simoneau, Col. Frank J. Williams, surgeon-general of Massachusetts, and Miss Grace Dean, a visitor in the employ of the public welfare department of Winthrop.

According to officials of the welfare department, today's indictments were the opening gun in a campaign intended to eliminate unworthy beneficiaries of the town's relief funds who have systematically plundered the town for years.

MISSING POISON PEN SUSPECT PROVES MAN OF MYSTERY

POLICE TRAIL HIM ON NEW YORK CLUE

Francois Soren, Wanted in the Case, Had Many Girl Visitors In Home

Francois Soren, sought in New York in connection with the Harvard poison pen plot, became a man of great mystery and a much-wanted quarry today, following disclosure of certain facts about his life, according to the investigating authorities.

Soren was yesterday reported taken into custody, but it developed later that this was not correct, but that his living quarters had been located.

Today he was missing and as search went on for him in New York detectives revealed that he was a nightworker who, according to his landlady, spent much of his daytime hours writing letters in his room.

He recently moved from a house on East 87th st. to a Lexington ave. address in the "nineties" and had several girl visitors, about whom there was as much mustery as about Soren himself, the New York police stated.

NAME GIVES CLUE.

Photostatic copies of letters received at Harvard, attacking Timothy A. Taracouzio, law school instructor and former Russian nobleman, were rushed to New York.

One letter was signed "Mary Soren," a name which meant nothing to Taracouzio, and it was this clue that led to search for any man or woman of that name in New York and resulted in picking up the trail of Francois Soren.

State detectives working under Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County admitted today that the "Mary Soren" letter was the most valuable clue in their possession.

It was not superfluously vicious like the others. In it the writer simply said "she" had met Taracouzio in the summer of 1930 and found him "unfit" to hold a position on the Harvard faculty.

MAY SOLVE MYSTERY

The letter was received December 16 by Dean Roscoe L. Pound of the law school. It was on cheap note paper and bore as a return address: "General delivery, Jersey City, N. J." Dean Pound wrote a reply, but his letter came back unopened.

In many ways, this letter struck a different note than the others, being similar only in that it attacked Taracouzio. The others were typed; it was in the handwriting of a woman or girl.

The other letters were all mailed in Boston or Cambridge. Because of its different features, the investigators believe it is the best working lead and that perhaps it is the mistake that spoils the plotter's "perfect crime."

State Detectives Edward O'Neil and Edward Sherlock conducted an intensive search for a Cambridge man yesterday, finally locating him at 7 o'clock last evening. Dist. Atty. Bishop was summoned and the suspect was given a grilling for several hours.

SUSPECT CLEARED

After the man had been questioned at length and submitted samples of his handwriting and samples from his typewriter, the district attorney and detectives released him, saying they were satisfied he had nothing to do with the case.

In the meantime, the poison penman, who seems to take a delight in the situation he has created, continues to write letters to authorities, taunting them and defying them to discover his identity.

LABOR ASKS ALL TO JOIN FIGHT

Washington, May 14 (INS)—The American Federation of Labor today officially recognized the non-union working man by appealing to him and also to members of the federation to resist wage reductions.

Declaring "there are strong indications that we are facing a third winter of distressing unemployment," the executive council of the federation charged certain banking interests and certain employers are agitating a general reduction in wages in "public violation of the understanding reached at the President's conference" with the leaders of business and industry.

The council specifically named the Goodyear and Goodrich Tire Companies as having "announced substantial reductions in wages" and said it believes that it is only a step from reduction in wages to continuous permanent unemployment.

"Everyone knows what we need is a restoration of buying power and the preservation of the American standard of living. Apparently these employers who would attempt to enforce reductions in wages think only in terms of increased production," the council said.

WIFE ACCUSES ARMY CAPTAIN

pected Capt. Dunstan of trying slowly to poison her to death.

"Yes," she said. "I had suspicions the lemonade was poisoned. I thought it was a form of poison that would cause an apparently natural death. I did not know whether I had been receiving poison doses before or whether or not this was a final dose."

She drank it, she said, and was made ill.

"I was defending my children. I would have taken anything. There was nothing else to do to avoid arousing the captain's suspicions but drink the lemonade."

She said she became suspicious that the lemonade was poisoned because of the manner in which her husband gave it to her and his reaction to the empty glass after she had drunk it.

WENT TO DOCTOR

"A glow of satisfaction spread over his face," she said.

In the resulting illness, she said, her eyes were affected and she went to a doctor, her husband going with her. The doctor gave her a prescription, she said, after Capt. Dunstan had told him she suffered from kidney trouble.

"I never had kidney trouble in my life," she told the court.

After the lemonade incident she communicated with the Burns Detective Agency, she testified.

Yesterday it was brought out that she had slashed three tires on her husband's automobile and today she was asked:

"You calmly and quietly took a carving knife and started out to cut his tires."

She admitted she had. She said her husband pulled the knife away from her, cutting both her hands, and struck her a blow that knocked her across the garage. Five minutes later she got the knife again and cut the tires.

"He tried to back the car over me," she said.

LEG CAUGHT IN DOOR

On one occasion, she said, her leg was caught in a door when she was pursuing him. She said he fled into another room and slamming the door caught her leg.

"I cried and moaned in extreme pain," she said.

His flight, she testified, was to escape answering a question. Asked whether this question was regarding his conduct, she replied:

"I should say his lack of conduct."

Continuing her relation of the leg episode, she said:

"He opened the dor and swung at me. He hit me with his fist on the jaw. It was a severe blow. I hit the other side of the corridor wall. The blow left a mark on my jaw."

At breakfast, she said, she started to tell his mother of his "objectionable conduct" and he grabbed her arm and told her to "shut up."

"He kept gritting his teeth at me," she said.

From a letter written in 1929 by Mrs. Dunstan to her husband the following excerpt was read:

"What a picnic for the papers if they should learn that a West Point wife had broken ranks and fled, too."

Asked what she meant by that Mrs. Dunstan said she was referring to a West Point man who had eloped at a West Point game in New Haven, and was figuring in the papers at that time.

"What do you mean by 'breaking ranks,'" she was asked.

"He took French leave and did what he wanted," she answered.

"Isn't it true that you had taken French leave and was going to do what you wanted?" she was questioned.

"No," was Mrs. Dunstan's answer.

John D. Sr. Decorated Knight of the Kingdom of God

Cleveland, May 14 (INS)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was the recipient today of a medal symbolizing knighthood in the Baptist Church. The honor, one of the highest the denomination can bestow on one of its members, was presented by the Cleveland Baptist Association.

Inscribed upon the medal were the words, "To the Knight of the Kingdom of God." The ceremony was part of the celebration of "Rockefeller Day" of the centennial week of the Cleveland Baptist Association.

NOBLE CASE UP TO GRAND JURY

Newburyport, May 14—Presentation of evidence to the Essex County Grand Jury in the case of Russell Noble, 17, charged with the hammer slaying of Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis of Haverhill, was completed today.

Dr. Francis W. Anthony, Haverhill medical examiner, and Richard Griffin, state detective who conducted the investigation of the murder, testified at length.

Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg said the report of state alienists on the mental condition of the former Haverhill schoolboy will be filed with the clerk of the Superior Criminal court immediately following the expected return of the indictment against him.

Senator King Urges Higher Income Tax

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Senator King of Utah, Democratic member of the Senate finance committee, today joined Senate Republican independents in urging higher income taxes on the wealthy to help balance the Government budget.

The Westerner, who is preparing an increased tax bill, also agreed with Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, that the gift tax should be restored and called for a material raise in the federal estate tax.

EXPORTS JUMP ON RUM RULE

Ottawa, May 14 (AP)—On the map they appear as two dots at the mouth of the St. Lawrence river—the Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, with a total area of 93 square miles and a combined population of 3918.

During the last fiscal year they ranked ninth among Canada's export customers. They were ahead of seven nations and the whole continent of Australia.

The value of exports to the two small islands during the fiscal year, the Canadian department of national revenue announced today, was $11,004,479.

It consisted of the ordinary needs of a population of less than 4000—and liquor. Just how much of the total was for ordinary merchandise and how much for liquor was not given out, but the amount of business done between the Dominion and the islands before the Canadian Parliament stopped the export of liquor into the United States was negligible.

Referendum Asks to Block New School

A referendum petition to block the construction of Melrose's new $715,000 high school was taken out today by Frank G. Kellogg, former alderman. He contends the cost of the school will exceed the stipulated amount more than a quarter of a million dollars.

It will be necessary for the petition to be signed by at least 1200 persons before work on the school can be stopped.

Boston's Schools

More schools, better schools.

The future of our country, the perpetuation of our American institutions, the progress of our people depend on the schools.

Boston for more than 150 years has been the center of education in America.

It may be proud of its many fine schools, of its long list of splendid and progressive educators.

It has many fine leaders and teachers today, who are ably carrying on the traditions of those who marked the way for them.

But many of our schools are old and antiquated. We have not kept up with the growth of the city in building new and modern schools.

New schools are needed in several fast-growing districts. Many old buildings must be replaced with new ones.

Much is to be done if Boston is to become 100 per cent right in the vital problem of schools.

Proper co-operation between city and school officials can bring about this result.

There can be no excuse for not having good schools in new neighborhoods, but we must make sure that we also have good schools in old neighborhoods.

POPE TO VOICE CHURCH STAND ON LABOR

Communism, Unemployment to Be Discussed in World Radio Address

WEEI TO CARRY ADDRESS

The address of Pope Pius tomorrow will be broadcast in Boston by WEEI. Translation of the Italian will be made by Mgr. Francis Spellman of Whitman. The program is scheduled to last until 1:30.

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

Universal Service Special Cable

(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Vatican City, May 14—From Vatican circles Universal Service today gained an inkling of the deep comprehension with which Pope Pius XI plans to attack a problem of world-wide importance in his third radio address to the world on Friday.

Just as 40 years before that day, Pope Leo XIII issued his famous encyclical, "rerum novarum," so Pope Pius, Universal Service understands, plans to enunciate the Catholic Church's latest cardinal principles in dealing with the problems of labor and capital.

ENCYCLICAL PLANNED

While the Pontiff will speak extemporaneously, Universal Service has been given an outline of the six points on which he will dwell. It is understood the Pope intends elaborating these points in an encyclical to be issued a few days after his radio talk:

1—An enunciation of Christian principles involved in the social question.

2—The rights and duties of capital and labor.

3—Wages should not be based purely on the law of supply and demand, but also on a consideration of the individual and his family, since the workman must obtain from wages the means of keeping himself and family.

FAVORS STATE ACTION

4—Work must not absorb the workman's entire time and energy, but must leave him leisure in which to oversee the religious duties of his family and forward their intellectual progress.

5—Conflicts between labor and capital must not be solved by class struggles, but by the collaboration of the classes. This collaboration will be greatly facilitated by the organization of workmen corporations similar to those of earlier Christian times.

6—The state should not remain indifferent in the face of labor conflicts. It has the right and duty to intervene with various laws aimed to protect the rights and duties of both capital and labor.

U. S. MAY BUY RUM FOR ENVOY

Washington, May 14 (AP)—The American government was confronted today with the intricate diplomatic problem of replacing some $300 worth of liquors stolen from the Salvadorean legation.

A check of the embassy's diplomatic liquor supply after the raid, in which Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, charge d'affairs, was injured, showed 17 cases to be missing.

Under diplomatic customs when a diplomat, through lack of protection prescribed by international law, loses personal property, the government of the country in which the incident occurred makes good the loss.

Secretary Stimson in a letter to the diplomat said every effort would be made to apprehend the marauder of the legation. The question of further police protection for foreign diplomats is being considered.

10 DIE, 86 HURT IN CAIRO RIOT

Cairo, Egypt, May 14—Ten men were reported killed and 86 injured today when striking railway shop workmen fought with police in the streets following the opening of the polls in the general elections. Two of the injured were British engineers.

Unofficial estimates placed the number of dead at more than a score, but there was no opportunity to check these figures for the riots spread from the railway shops to other sections of the city and the government was considering calling out the troops.

Disorders broke out near the center of the town, where mobs attacked and burned trolley cars and buses. In other sections workmen pulled down lampposts and threw them across the streets to block traffic.

"CAROL FACES REVOLUTION"

New York, May 14—If King Carol does not get off the throne of Rumania very soon—look out for another great European war.

In picturing Rumania as the touchstone of a huge international conflagration, Konrad Bercovici, arch-critic of Queen Marie and her son Carol, predicted a revolution in his native land before the end of 1931.

"If Carol has enough sense—and I doubt it—he will proclaim a republic immediately and make himself President," said the noted author today.

"And when the revolution occurs in Rumania, anything may happen. Russia is hungry to get back Bessarabia, which was awarded to Rumania for her part in the World War. Rumania also got one-third of Hungary and the Hungarians are watching their chance.

Central Vermont Appraisal Is Cut

Montpelier, Vt., May 14 (AP)—The appraisal of the Central Vermont Railway was reduced today from $12,000,000 to $11,500,000 by the Board of Appeals.

Before the 1927 flood the railroad had been appraised at $10,000,000, and the last appraisal represented a $2,000,000 increase.

BURIED IN SNOW BANK 2 MONTHS DUG OUT ALIVE

Scientist Found in an Igloo in Greenland Had Nothing but a Chimney Hole for Air

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Angmagsalik, Greenland, May 14 (AP)—A story of being buried two months beneath ice and snow in an igloo was told here today by Augustine Courtauld.

The British scientist, rescued last week by fellow members of the British Arctic air route expedition, had only a chimney way to provide air in his place of refuge on the Greenland ice cap.

Courtaud, whom Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish aviator, brought here with H. G. Watkins, chief of the rescue party, from their inland base, was unshaven and unrecognizable beneath a long growth of beard and appeared somewhat the worse for a long enforced diet of seal meat.

SEARCHED FOR WEEKS

Watkins said his rescue party had toiled for many weeks over the ice crags toward the locality where they had left Courtauld to observe weather conditions. They frequently lost the trail and were delayed for days when the skies became clouded and they could not ascertain their position.

In searching a wide ice field they found an enormous drift, covered with a thick layer of ice which they concluded must have been Courtlaud's igloo. At the top of the snow mound the weary party found a small hole and concluded it must be the igloo's chimney.

FOUND AT LAST

They shouted into it and heard in reply an unexpected "Hello. All right." They went to work with spades and within 15 minutes had reached Courtlaud.

Courtauld said two months before a blizzard had raged for several days, completely covering the igloo. It was out of the question to try to dig himself out, because the snow would have fallen in on him and because he had left his only shovel outside. Part of his supplies also were outside.

The chimney he had kept open to provide himself with air. For a month he was without a permanent light and depended for an occasional glimmer upon a little gasoline lamp which he used to melt snow to obtain drinking water.

Coutauld said he had spent most of his dreary time in his sleeping bag, dozing and thinking, telling himself to keep up his courage.

SPAIN SEIZES KING'S RICHES

which have resulted in damages to church property estimated at more than $30,000,000, the government also charged that during the last eight years the ex-monarch had used his "tyrannical rule" for personal gain instead of the good of the people. His indictment will be sought.

WILL SEIZE RICHES

No decision as to the disposal of the property will be made until the constitutional cortes, which will be elected in June, convenes. Until that time all cash or securities on deposit in the Bank of Spain must remain intact, the decree ordered. Meanwhile, bankers and other individuals holding property for the former King must surrender it to the ministry of finance.

Alfonso's holdings in Spain are reputed to amount to several million dollars. Under the terms of the decree he will lose everything.

His palaces at San Sebastian and Santander, many works of art, including paintings by old masters, and his stocks in various business and industrial enterprises. The former monarch also was a heavy holder of stock in the Madrid subway which he will lose if it is deposited in Spanish banks.

Despite the prompt action of the government, there was no fear that Alfonso will be pauperized. Made poorer by many millions of pesetas, he still retains hold of a fortune estimated at between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 invested abroad.

PEASANTS ARE ARMED

It was announced that Cardinal Pedro Seguray Saenz, archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain, whose pastoral letter last week urging Spaniards to vote for deputies who would defend their religion was held partly responsible for the outbreak of rioting, had crossed the fronier to France by automobile.

In moving today to check further disorders the Government removed a number of police chiefs for laxity during the recent riots resulting in destruction of 65 Catholic institutions.

The entire Province of Andalucia today was under the rule of troops. The captain-general at Seville was notified that farmers and peasants in Castilleja, Los Palacios and Umbretes had armed themselves to defend churches of the province against threatened Communist attacks.

In most cities Catholics went back to church today after the riotous days just ended. It was the Feast of the Ascension, one of the most important days in the Catholic calendar and a national holiday in Spain.

Portsmouth Navy Yard Rumor Denied

Portsmouth, N. H., May 14 (AP)—Mayor F. W. Hartford today denied reports that the Portsmouth Navy Yard might be closed by the Navy Department as an economy measure. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest L. Jehncke was cited by Mayor Hartford as authority for the statement no such action was contemplated.

"We have the only naval station equipped to build submarines and we have two and a half years' work under way," the mayor said.

"The experiment in building a submarine at the Mare Island Navy Yard took so much longer and was so much more expensive, the Navy Department centered all further construction here."

WOULD GIVE HER LIFE TO KNOW THE TRUTH

Detectives and Guides Are Still Searching, but State Hunt Is Over

Mrs. Rebecca Kaufman, 78-year-old mother of Mitchell B. Kaufman, would give her life to know what happened to him, she told the Boston Evening American today.

Beset by reports of murder, suicide, accident and deliberate disappearance, she has suffered torture since the day, last November, when the Boston manufacturer vanished without a trace in the woods north of Jackman, Me.

Her own belief is that he became lost in the woods while hunting and that he perished—that if he was alive he would long ago have notified her.

WOULD GIVE LIFE TO KNOW.

"Who can tell what happened to my son?" she asked hopelessly. "I have asked myself that question ever since the day I was told he was missing.

"I wish I knew where he was. I would give my life to know.

"Even if they found him dead in these woods at Jackman, it would be some consolation, for God knows I would know where he was and I would have the opportunity to give him a decent burial.

"The story that my son had been given $150,000 a few days before he left was the most contemptible lie that has ever been printed about him.

SURE HE WAS LOST.

"I know in my heart that if Mitchell were alive I would know where he was. He loved me too much to go away and stay without letting us hear from him.

"I feel that my boy was lost in those woods. A few days before he left he said to me, 'Mother, dear, I am tired and I am go- away for a rest. One of the fellows at the office told me that Crocker pond was a wonderful place to rest and hunt and that is where I am going.'

"On the day he left he kissed me goodby and said, 'So long, mother. I will see you in a few days.'"

STATE SEARCH ENDS.

Meanwhile, at Jackman the search for Kaufman's body by detectives and guides continued. The official State search is ended, for the time being, at least.

Sheriff Elton Markham of Skowhegan told the Evening American today:

"Until the State appropriates the necessary funds, I do not plan to go to Jackman to search for Kaufman. As the situation stands Kaufman is a man lost in the woods, and it is not incumbent upon the State to go to the expense of searching for a man who is lost and probably dead in the woods."

CHICAGO GIRL IN DEATH TRY HERE

Scores in the South Station saw a well-dressed girl collapse on the floor of the concourse today, after attempting to end her life with poison, according to the police.

Ruth Davis of Sheridan ave., Chicago, were the name and address she gave later at the Haymarket Relief Hospital, where doctors said she would recover.

Inquiry by the police disclosed that she had probably just alighted from the Twentieth Century Limited.

In the midst of the crowd in the concourse she was seen to place a vial to her lips and drain the contents, collapsing a moment later.

JAIL TERM FOR NEW 'RACKET'

An alleged "racket" to defraud chambers of commerce was exposed in municipal court today when George R. Salisbury, 52, with a string of aliases, was sentenced to six months.

Salisbury was found guilty of theft of $20 by false pretences from Carl Pischoff, manager of the Lewiston, Me.. Chamber of Commerce.

Evidence was presented showing that Salisbury had written the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce that he was interested in the purchase of a $70,000 factory there, and asking expenses for himself and an "engineer."

Police said Salisbury was sentenced to jail more than 20 years ago for participating in the Sterling Debenture $3,500,000 swindle.

4 MEN HELD IN DERBY FRAUD

New York, May 14 (INS)—Four men were held today in connection with a spurious $200,000 Kentucky Derby Sweepstakes in which authorities claimed hundreds of New Yorkers and Atlantic City residents were defrauded.

The four also were alleged to have combined the Sweepstakes lottery with a dance under the auspices of the Daniel Boone Society, Inc. The dance was later cancelled.

Harrison W. Morse, president of the society, was arrested with Jacques Pinhas, secretary-treasurer; Arthur J. Costy and Alvin R. Voss.

TRAPPED AFTER 8-YEAR VIGIL

Bangor, Me., May 14 (AP)—Robert O'Shaughnessy, 67, a Canadian immigration officer, was in custody of Federal authorities today charged with illegal sale and possession of liquor.

O'Shaughnessy, who made nightly runs on the Canadian Pacific Railway between McAdam Junction, N. B., and Danforth, Me., was arrested at Danforth after he was alleged to have sold a quart of liquor to Fay Graves, a federal prohibition agent. Graves and Dana Boone, another agent, said O'Shaughnessy was in full uniform.

William A. Moran, in charge of prohibition agents here, said O'Shaughnessy had been "under suspicion" for eight years.

ALLSTON MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

The body of Charles E. Dodge, 61, of 57 Brighton ave., Allston, was found hanging from a sprinkler pipe today in the office of the Boston Stitching & Pleating Co., 234 Boylston st., where he was employed as a foreman.

Discovered by his employer, Conrad Gerlach, the body was cut down and the prone emthod of resuscitation was used by a policeman, but failed to revive him.

Police said fellow employes stated Dodge had been brooding over family troubles.

Dodge apparently mounted a chair in the office, threw the cord over a pipe, made it fast around his neck and stepped off.

He arrived at the office ahead of other employes and was seen by Janitor Henry Nelson with a cord in his hand, about 7:45. The janitor said he paid no attention and went about his business.

Jail Settles So Far Cell Doors Can't Be Locked

Albany, N. Y., May 14 (INS)—A jail, the cell doors of which cannot be locked, has been discovered by the state correction commission. It is the Chautauqua County jail in Mayville.

"As the building has settled out of shape it is impossible to lock the cell doors," the commission reported. "Since there is no officer actively on duty during the night the inmates have access to any cell—a condition which should not be tolerated."

NYE PLANS FOR CANNON QUIZ

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Chairman Nye of the Senate campaign funds committee today called a special meeting to be held in New York this week-end for consideration of the inquiry into the disposition of campaign funds by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in 1928.

The chairman today left for New York. He will confer there with Senators Dale, Republican, Vermont, and Wagner, Democrat, New York.

Bishop Cannon, who has challenged the authority of the committee, called today on Chairman Nye to ask about future plans of the committee. The bishop was informed that the committee would make them known to him at least by Monday.

STATE SECURES REGISTRY SITE

The State today purchased from the Boston & Maine railroad 48,247 square feet of land on the Nashua st. boulevard at the corner of Lowell st., opposite the Hotel Manger, as a site for a nine-story office building to house the State department of public works and the registry of motor vehicles. The price was fixed at $144,741.

The land is assessed for $4 a foot, but the sale price to the State is at the rate of $3 a foot.

The deal was closed at a conference between Governor Ely, Public Works Commissioner Frank E. Lyman, Associate Commissioner Herman A. McDonald, A. B. Nichols, executive vice-president of the Boston & Maine, and John C. Kiley, real estate appraiser for the railroad.

The Nashua st. location was selected because of its availability to the North Station, both railroad and Elevated station, its accessibility to two main highway arteries and for parking space.

The state owns the land on the opposite side of the street on the water front, and it is planned to fill in about two or three acres and use it for parking.

The building was recently authorized by the Legislature to the extent of $1,500,00 through a bond issue.

HENIGAN GIVES BOYS ADVICE

"Keep straight!"

This was Smiling Jimmy Henigan's advice to 500 Revere junior high school boys who crowded the auditorium of the James A. Garfield school, to hear the Marathon winner tell how he did it.

Henigan was the guest of Superintendent of Schools Carl F. Linstrol of Revere. At his invitation the school boys were treated to a talk on the makings of a Marathon winner.

He urged the young men to protect their bodies and keep sound their minds.

"If you keep straight, boys," he said, "you'll find it easier to keep that body well trained and those muscles strong and hard."

Henigan, who won the Marathon last April 20, told the boys how he trained for the race. He told how he won it.

The boys cheered Henigan and deluged him with questions when his talk was over. They wanted to know how to improve their track practice, how to retain their wind, how to breathe properly while running and many other bits of advice.

Henigan answered them all by personal experience.

CHANGES ARE OPPOSED BY HULTMAN

Amended Traffic Laws End "Civil War" Following the Recent Curley Episode

The police will hang no more tags on the mayor's car.

The Boston Traffic Commission, with Police Commissioner Hultman dissenting, announced two amendments to existing traffic regulations today.

All vehicles "owned, used or controlled by the mayor" were added to the list of authorized emergency vehicles exempt from parking rules.

So, too, were "all vehicles used by the corporation counsel and employes of the law department of the city of Boston in connection with the work of said department."

SHARE IN SAFETY

Also exempted were "all vehicles used by the city treasurer and employes of the treasury department in connection with delivery of payrolls and collection of money."

The commission further amended the regulations by striking out of the paragraph exempting emergency vehicles the phrase, "while the drivers of such emergency vehicles are operating the same in an emergency in the necessary performance of their duties."

The second amendment will allow Mayor Curley to park his car outside a barber shop while having a shave.

The amendments were passed by the Traffic Commission last week and kept secret. The commission notified the police department today that they would go into effect on May 25.

HULTMAN OPPOSED

Chairman Joseph A. Conry and Commissioners Joseph A. Rourke, William P. Long and Thomas J. Hurley voted in favor of them. Only Police Commissioner Hultman opposed. He based his objection on the failure of the commissioners to include the cars of state officials in the exempting provisions.

The municipal civil war that resulted three weeks ago when a patrolman hung a tag on Mayor Curley's car outside a barber shop is believed to have had considerable influence on the amendments.

The resulting controversy between Commissioner Hultman and Commissioner Conry, who bitterly assailed him, faded somewhat when the police commissioner adopted a policy of silence.

The new regulations will become effective unless 25 regular voters of the city request a public hearing on them.

TAX PENSION PLAN BEATEN

The House today rejected by a vote of 117 to 105, a proposal to finance the old age pensions by increasing the state tax on incomes of more than $5000.

It was the first vote in connection with the debate over the financing problem. The House has before it a bill to provide the pension funds by raising the men's poll tax to $3 and placing a $2 poll tax on women.

Rep. Roland D. Sawyer, Democrat, of Ware, presented the income tax increase plan in the form of a motion to recommit the bill to committee, and he was supported by Edward J. Kelly, Democrat, of Worcester. Kelly said he would vigorously fight any attempt to impose a cigarette and tobacco tax.

No sooner was the Sawyer motion defeated, however, than Rep. Michael H. Jordan of Lawrence made a motion to amend the bill by providing for a tax on cigarettes and tobacco, instead of the poll tax changes. Other speakers supported his plan.

Rep. Albert F. Bigelow, Republican, Brookline, said the poll tax changes would bring in about $3,267,000, and he said the bill provides for the state to pay all the pensions, instead of placing part of the burden on the cities and towns.

VAUGHAN PROBE IN SECRET

Frederick D. Bonner, temporary receiver handling the affairs of Guy L. Vaughan, missing bank receiver who left the finances of five banks in a tangled condition, and Francis P. Kirk, certified public accountant in charge of the untangling of the banks' books, today held a secret conference with Dist. Atty. William A. Foley.

Foley refused to reveal the nature of the conference other than it had to do with a report on the banks' audits.

YOUNG BRIDE THREATENED

A "poison pen letter" threatening her with death unless she "let her husband go," has been received by Mrs. Emma F. Frietas, 19-year-old bride of six months, of Clapp st., Stoughton.

The letter was turned over to the police. It read in part:

"He doesn't love you. He loves me. He only married you to spite me and now he is sorry. Listen, you, let him go. You better watch your step about 11 o'clock every night. I watch you. I'll kill you.

"You know who.

"M. R. C."

Mrs. Frietas and her husband Francis, declared that they knew of no one who might have written the note nor could they supply a motive for it.

FIREBUG AGAIN VISITS FORBES ESTATE

For the second time in a week a firebug today visited the estate of W. Cameron Forbes, former Governor-General of the Philippines, at Norwood, setting a blaze which destroyed a sheep shed valued at $1500.

Five barns in all, on estates of wealthy residents of Norwood, have been destroyed by incendiary fires within a month, according to Fire Chief John Hannigan.

Two draught horses which have competed for prizes at shows were saved in today's fire. A large quantity of valuable lumber from the Philippines had only recently been removed from the shed.

High-priced polo ponies and prize cattle in other barns on the Forbes property were not endangered, although for a time it was feared the fire was in one of these barns.

The flames had gained considerable headway when employes arrived on the scene and led out the two draught horses. The shed was 200 feet long and the horses were at the farthest from the flames.

Firemen had to lay a hose line through a wooded section and the shed was doomed before this was done.

A large barn on the estate of Edward L. Fay on Nahattan st., Norwood, was heavily damaged last night, and Chief Hannigan has asked State officials to investigate both fires.

26 More Prisoners Taken to Norfolk

QUINCY HEIR IN PLEA TO STATE FOR CASH

Admitting that he "hasn't an extra nickel to his name," Arthur W. Newcombe, 69, a member of one of the oldest families in Quincy, appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee, today, and pleaded for himself and relatives for:

"Something to carry on with until we go into the ground."

Newcombe went to the State House and asked reimbursement of $20,000 for himself and the heirs of the late Samuel S. Newcombe, whose property was seized by the State in 1917 as a war measure, and then turned over to a shipbuilding company.

Newcombe based his claim for damages on the loss of the business of Samuel S. Newcombe, which he was carrying on for himself and other heirs. He was backed in his claim for the damages by Mayor Thomas J. McGrath and former Mayor Joseph L. Whitten, each of whom addressed the members of the committee.

Newcombe made an impassioned plea in support of his claim before the ways and means committee.

He said in part:

"We wouldn't care if this land had been taken for some public purpose, but it was taken to please the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. I was driven out. I was away when men came with axes and tore down my store without notice.

"What are we going to do? I don't want to go to the poorhouse. I haven't an extra nickel in my pocket. If you have got a job I will take it. We have lived in Quincy since 1635, and simply want something to carry on with until we get into the ground. I think we should get $20,000."

The plea was taken under advisement.

SOVIET DRIVE GAINS 86,000 NEW MEMBERS

Moscow, May 14 (INS)—The Third or Communist International gained 86,200 converts outside of Soviet Russia last year as a result of spending the record total of $641,230 on propaganda in 49 different countries, according to figures just revealed here.

The amount spent for propaganda is listed in the balance sheet for 1930, just published, as expenses for "subsidies to the Communist party press, cultural and educational work."

The Comintern's income and expenses for the first time since its organization in 1919 exceeded $1,000,000 a year. It is interesting to note that the books are kept in terms of United States dollars and not in Soviet rubles. The membership dues which the 49 national sections paid into the international treasury in behalf of the 2,518,637 members totaled $956,000, an increase of nearly 30 per cent over the preceding year.

Only 19 per cent of the total membership of two and one-half million resides outside of Soviet Russia. The only country in which the Communist party showed a substantial percentage gain last year was in the United States.

Bride Takes First Round

—By Arthur "Bugs" Baer—

Chicago, May 14—Got into the first argument with the bride today. (Bugs was married last week.) Sat up all night on the train talking with Senator Copeland, Rube Goldberg and Sir Hubert Wilkins.

Forgot all about being married. Rapped on the drawing room door at dawn. Sweet woman poked her nose out of the door and yelled:

"I've heard about birds staying at their clubs, their lodges and their offices. But you're the first mugg I ever heard of who could stay out all night on a train."

That's a record. Then she said:

"How dare you use language like that to me? I won't stand for it. Stop that kind of talking right away."

I said, "Dearie, that ain't me. It's General Smedley Butley on the air."

There's been some slight diplomatic trouble in Chicago. Milt Gross has an escort of six motorcycle policemen while the Crown Prince of Japan only has four.

However, Ted Cook and myself straightened that out. We wired Grover Whalen for reinforcements and have given the Prince federal permission to autograph all the bass drums east of the Mississippi.

Toronto, Ont., May 14 (US)—With its principal industry, the Abitibi Power plant, closed down, residents of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., are facing a crisis heretofore unknown. Many families actually are starving and practically all are without money to buy necessities.

They were held for observation and plans made for X-rays to determine the extent of their injuries. None of the trio was seriously hurt.

BREAK INTO GARAGE

Arlington police say that shortly after midnight, Mrs. M. Kathleen Griggs, of 38 Mystic Lakes drive, notified Sergt. Albert E. Ryan that several persons had gone to her garage and after breaking the lock had stolen a new high-powered sedan.

Sergt. Ryan sent out a description of the car and its registration and near 3 a. m. the car was seen by Sergt. Thomas Sullivan and Patrolmen William Donovan and James O'Brien, of the flying squadron, speeding along Massachusetts ave.

IGNORE POLICE SHOTS

They ordered the driver to halt, and when he refused, gave chase. Repeated refusals to halt caused the officers to fire five times after the fleeing car, but the sedan continued to gather speed.

The car turned from Massachusetts ave. into Highland ave. as far as Plymouth st. Turning here, it sped to Lackland ave., and kept on to Massachusetts ave. There, instead of turning, the car continued straight ahead into Schouler st., a dead-end street.

Shooting down Schouler st., the driver tried futilely to swerve but failed and the car hurled straight out over the embankment and, turning several times in the air, plunged to the ground with a terrific crash.

GIRL THROWN OUT

Mrs. Flynn was thrown from the car and buried beneath it at the impact. She was killed instantly. Scott died shortly after the crash.

The police ambulance was summoned and a fire alarm sounded. Fire apparatus turned flood lights on the tragic scene to assist the rescuers. It was necessary to lift the demolished car to recover Mrs. Flynn's body.

The embankment over which the car plunged is a steep incline leading from Schouler ct. down to the new Arlington high school athletic field.

94 SCHOOLS HIT BY GOODWIN AS DANGEROUS

story brick building built in 1873 and contains eight rooms containing children ranging from four to nine years of age. There are two kindergarten and six primary grades. In case of fire there is no means of egress from the building except stairways inside the building.

"We don't like to spend much money on these old buildings on account of the fact that they may be replaced," said Supt. Burke, "but Mr. Rourke did a remarkable and splendid piece of work last year in putting fire escapes on some of the older buildings. Some of the older buildings did require fire escapes. There was a large amount of money in Mr. Rourke's budget last year and a large amount will be included for the same purpose this year.

"In the case of the Tappan school in East Boston, we are planning a new school there. Plans are under way for a 13-room building on the same site and I think the work will start soon. Eventually the old Tappan school will be torn down.

PARENTS IN PROTEST.

Silas French of Trenton st., East Boston, whose eight-year-old son, Harold, goes to the Tappan school, said:

"I think all public schools should have fire escapes. I have three yound children in two public schools in East Boston and neither of the schools has fire escapes. If the city can spend money for other things it certainly ought to be able to spend it for protection of the lives of little children."

Joseph Merrigan, another resident of Trenton st., who has a son in the Tappan school, voiced the same statements as did Mr. French.

"It is high time responsible officials saw to it that all public schools are properly equipped with fire escapes," he said.

SCHOOL STAIRS WOODEN

The Tappan school contains 300 children. Their class rooms are on the first and second floors. During fire drills, which are conducted once a month, the children march out four abreast dowf two stairways, one at each end of the building.

The stairways, which are of wood, are wide enough to accommodate a teacher walking beside four children. The double doors at either end of the school on the first floor, through which the children pass into the brick-paved yard, open outward.

According to the teachers there the average time consumed in emptying the school during fire drill is 2½ minutes. The roof of the school is made of slate and the sides of brick.

Chairman Goodwin of the Finance Commission said he would appear at the next meeting of the legislative committee on rules to fight against the proposed building law amendment, filed last Tuesday on behalf of the school committee. This amendment is intended to rescind legislation signed last month by Governor Ely, giving the building department supervision over all public building projects.

"Parochial and private schools, colleges and other institutions are obliged to live up to the building regulations, and there was no reason in the world why the school authorities should not be forced to conform to the laws," Goodwin said.

Records produced at the commission's school investigation revealed that there were 94 school buildings in the city which were not equipped with fire escapes, Chairman Goodwin asserted.

At the same time it was shown that in 39 school buildings the old latrine system of sanitation was in use, he said.

CHARGES SAFETY IGNORED

At the new East Boston high school building plumbing traps were placed in an exposed position over the lunch counter, and in a number of other instances the school officials had failed to observe the laws by providing adequate sprinklers, he said.

"The school authorities should be only too willing to adopt every safeguard for the protection of the thousands of children in their care," said Goodwin. "Yet they occupy the Girls' Trade School building in the Fenway when no private organization would be permitted to use it for similar purpose, because of its lack of sufficient egress, as the testimony in our investigation disclosed."

The placing of auditoriums over the boiler rooms in new school buildings was also attacked by Goodwin, as an example of the failure of the school officials to take every sane precaution for the safety of the pupils.

Heiress to Wed

BILL WILL MAKE AUTOISTS PAY FIRST $100

A new and radical financial responsibility automobile insurance bill was reported out by the Senate ways and means committee today as a substitute for the present compulsory insurance laws.

The measure retains the compulsory feature, sets up a demerit rating system, and provides that a motor vehicle owner shall pay the first $100 of any damages.

In the opinion of the committee the $100 penalty clause will cut down rates by causing settlements in small amounts, will increase safety on highways by making operators more careful, and will tend to avoid easy settlement by insurance companies.

It has worked successfully in Denmark and Sweden, according to the committee.

Another feature of the proposed bill is the establishment of a board of review by special deputies in the state department of insurance, to pass on all accidents involving personal injuries.

A single deputy would hold the first hearing and determine responsibility for the accident. If the insured is found by the deputy to be responsible, he will be assessed for the first accident from $5 to $20; for the second, $10 to $25; and for the third, $20 to $40, if the second and third occur within two years of the first.

Provision is made for an appeal to the review board consisting of three special deputies, and a further appeal may be made to the Superior Equity Court.

Low Plane Speed Control Is Argued

Baltimore, May 14 (AP)—The "short-sighted policy of American designers" of failing to devote more attention to the control of airplanes at low speeds was attacked here today before the teronautics section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers by Lieut. Carl Harper, former chief engineer of the naval aircraft factory and one time test pilot on experimental planes.

Man About Town

By AL DUFFY

FOR ADDIE

Waking or sleeping, I'm thinking of you,
Hoping and praying that love will come through.
You went away just to try to forget;
You may forget, but I'll always regret
Your leaving.

You left a heart that was cheery and bright
Suddenly changed to the darkest of night.
The West, with its beauty, may ease your mind,
But when you turn back perhaps you will find You're grieving.

We go for years before love comes our way,
Then hearts are broken in only a day.
When you close your eyes I hope that you get
A dream of the past that makes you regret
Your leaving.

Percy lives down in Greenwich Village, and it was his habit of an evening to drop into Barney Gallant's, where Walter—that broth of a boy—was entertaining, for a nightcap. On this particular evening Percy sat down, quaffed a brimming hooker of bandy, smacked his lips and rhapsodized:

"Ah, that descends upon the aches of one's stomach with all the benignity of a benediction!"

THEY SAVED THEIR HIDES THIS WAY

Increased profits in 1930

For a number of years a certain New England tannery could hardly make ends meet. The directors diagnosed the disease as old-fashioned methods, slow turnover and insufficient style appeal. They appointed a new management.

After analyzing the entire leather market, the new executives made these three important decisions:

1. To concentrate the company's entire production in one tannery.

This resulted in two plants being vacated and sold.

2. To maintain a steady daily production of ten basic kinds of leather throughout the year.

This condition was met by setting a minimum and a maximum daily production for each of the ten basic leathers. The minimum was set to insure a continuity of quality—each workman becoming highly expert in his own particular job. The maximum production was set to insure a quicker supply of popular items in response to style demands.

3. Whenever sales forecasts indicated that one kind of leather was running into an unprofitable period, it was produced in the minimum quantity. Some other kind, in which a profit was deemed more possible, taking its place.

These policies have resulted in lower costs, the proper diversification of product, improved quality and the ability to take advantage of style demands. The experience of the past seven years has demonstrated their soundness for this compact tannery. During a period when the leather business has faced almost ruinous conditions, this company has made increasing profits.

MORE KING TUT RELICS FOUND

Philadelphia, May 14 (AP)—Letters received at Haverford College and made public today revealed that additional evidence of the far-flung empire of the Egyptian king, Tut-ankh-amen, has been uncovered in Palestine by the Haverford expedition under the leadership of Dr. Elihu H. Grant.

The expedition is excavating the mound at Beth-Shemesh, a Palestine city closely linked with the story of Samson and Delila. City walls, houses, buried remains and great quantities of potteries uncovered in recent seasons have shown Philistine, Hebrew, Roman and Byzantine domination of the anicient city-state.

In one letter Dr. Grant said a painted clay goblet, dating from 1400 B. C., and similar objects found near the ruined wall of a house this season testify to the Egyptian occupation during the reign of Tut-ankh-amen.

"We find at Beth-Shemesh," Dr. Grant said, "evidence of the foreign domination of Palestine by the Hyksos, the Egyptians, the Sea peoples and the Hebrews. Then, skipping a thousand years, we find a settlement of Justinian's Age, smashed a little later by the Arabia conquest."

STABBING FATAL TO GAMBLER

New York, May 14 (INS)—Two thrusts of a long, keen knife today ended the career of Morris Reich, 54, a racetrack gambler, said to have run a shoestring into a fortune of $500,000.

Reich died in a hospital after he had been stabbed during a quarrel in Brooklyn. Benjamin Brownstein, 32, admitting stabbing Reich, according to police, but Reich refused to accuse Brownstein and told police he had never seen him before.

Brownstein, who said he had fought with the racetrack plunger because Reich had ordered him to stop playing a radio in a club, was held for questioning. He said Reich struck him in the face before he stabbed him.

Coin Like One Paid Judas for Betrayal Photoed in Capitol

Washington, May 14 (AP)—A silver shekel, the kind of coin said to have been paid to Judas for betraying Christ, had its picture taken today at the National Geographic Society.

Latest acquired rarity of the National Geographic Museum, the smooth-edged shekel, slightly smaller than a quarter, with a sacred vessel on one side and a flower device on the other, created quite a stir among scientists.

The coin was found with others in a clay urn by a workman excavating for the foundation of a new building in Palestine.

The Hellenic Community of Boston will hold its annual ball tonight at the Copley Plaza Hotel. Proceeds of the dance will go to the Annunciation of the Holy Virgin Church and to the Greek school.

BRITISH BANK RATE REDUCED

London, May 14 (AP)—The Bank of England reduced its discount rate today from three per cent to two and one half per cent. The rate had been at the old level for just over a year.

Reduction of the United States rate last week created a belief in the market that the directors of the Bank of England would follow suit, especially since discounts had been altogether out of touch with the official minimum.

Because of cheaper money the authorities therefore gave traders some assistance by reducing the rate a half per cent to its lowest since 1909.

Bank Teller Nabbed

Los Angeles, May 14 (US)—Suspected of embezzling "about $25,000," F. S. Crawford, teller of a Bank of America branch, was arrested here.

Lipton Attains Life Ambition, Election to Royal Yacht Club

London, May 14 (AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton today was elected a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron.

The Squadron is the most exclusive yacht club in the world and membership confers the right to fly the white ensign service flag of the British Navy.

On his birthday last Sunday Sir Thomas said he would issue his sixth challenge for the America's Cup in September, confident as ever that he could "get the old mug back."

It was one of the cherished ambitions of his life to achieve election to this club of which King George is admiral.

Those who have studied the Squadron's records say it is the first time in its history that a man of such humble origins has been admitted to membership.

THOUSANDS AT MASSES HERE

Despite the heavy downpour of rain, thousands of workers attended masses observing the Feast of the Ascension at Roman Catholic churches today.

Masses were held in the archdiocese of Boston at 6 a. m., with repetitions each hour thereafter and high mass at 10 o'clock. St. Mary's in the North End and St. James on Harrison ave. were both crowded to capacity, and the Cathedral of the Holy Cross on Washington st. was filled from 6 a. m. through the noon hour.

Episcopal churches in Boston observed the day with communion services at 8:15 and 10:30 this morning.

MAN CAN'T BOSS HIS EX-WIFE

Chicago, May 14 (AP)—The right of a divorced woman to select her own associates without approval of her husband was established in court yesterday by Mrs. Beulah Getschow, one-time musical show girl.

She lost, however, in her attempt to collect $100,000 as damages from Roy Getschow, her former husband whom she accused of trouncing her and Lawrence Robbins, a theatrical booking agent, on March 9, 1930, a year after she and Getschow were divorced.

Judge Michael McKinley dismissed the suit but warned Getschow that he had nothing to say about his former wife's associates.

Dr. Hart Dedicates Washington Statue

Richmond, Va., May 14 (AP)—Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard today turned back pages of history more than a century in dedicating Houdon's statue of Washington at the Virginia capitol.

The statue, completed in 1788, has stood here for 135 years without formal ceremonies marking its arrival in Virginia.

New Styles in Realm of Lace

SUPREMELY feminine, lace is scheduled for still another season of popularity. And the fact that one already has a lace frock in her evening wardrobe will not matter; for like tweed and jersey and printed chiffons laces now afford a variety that gives them the aspect of an entirely fresh fashion.

FINE THREAD laces and heavier Alencon types we are accustomed to—and not ready to put by. But there is a new confection in the lace realm, in the form of a heavy linen thread variety. Smartest in white, this new linen lace is also often seen in black, brown, bright red.

WHAT COULD be a better material for a summer evening dress? No amount of sea air foggy weather can spoil its freshness. It can be treated in the most careless manner and still it remains a fresh and lovely thing throughout the season.

UNDOUBTEDLY, ruffles will be triumphant for many weeks to come, but a straighter silhouette is hinted for late season wear. So when ruffles and a form-moulding silhouette combine as in the model pictured, the result is a triumph. The evening gown of white linen lace has long, graceful lines, close fitting about bodice and hips, with low flare from p t center front of skirt and bias peplum each side. The neck is round, deeper in back, a narrow belt of the lace caught with buckle of brilliants. A triangular scarf of the lace, ruffled on two sides, is tied over the shoulders. The pumps are of white moire.

Yale Societies Have Tap Day

New Haven, Ct., May 14 (AP)—This is Tap Day at Yale, when four senior societies carry through their time-honored ceremony of taking out 15 juniors each for membership. The societies are Skull and Bones, Scroll and Key, Wolf's Head and Elihu.

The scene is by a tree on the old campus. As the bell on Battell Chapel strikes four, a member of each society singles out a junior and gives him a vigorous tap between the shoulder blades and orders him to his room.

Pastor Hasn't Won Elizabeth Morrow

North Arlington, N. J., May 14 (AP)—The Rev. Clyde H. Roddy today denied that he was engaged to marry Elisabeth Morrow, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow.

"There is absolutely nothing to the story," said Mr. Roddy. "Miss Morrow and I are not engaged. I have talked with my sister and she also is denying statements concerning it made by her last night. The Morrow home also is denying the engagement."

Etiquette

Natural, Appropriate and Proper

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN:

I have a friend who lives in the country and she has some very well-to-do neighbors. She has written to ask me if, when calling on her friends, she should remain standing in the hall where the butler leaves her, or go direct to the living room? They seem to be quite friendly, but are not intimate, of course. I should step right into the living room, but would like your opinion.

L. T.

The butler usually indicates the way to the living room, where we are to wait. He would not, if he is even fairly well trained, leave us standing in the entrance hall. But even though we are a bit chagrined at being left in the entrance hall, perhaps it would be best to wait there until he returns with a message, or until the mistress of the house appears. Since this casualness may be the custom of the home.

Between You and Me

By THE COLYUMISS

EXPLANATIONS DUE

We've had so many queries and quips about the Kaeselau ear story that we feel maybe an explanation is due . . . No, the subject did not want a portrait of his ear for posterity; he wanted it painted after the surgical attachment was accomplished. Speaking of the Kaeselaus, a mighty talented, humorous, interesting family of Beacon st. and Provincetown . . . Marguerite, the artist who signs her things Benjamin . . . Charles, a painter of no mean repute . . . the Swedish government has bought some of his canvases . . . Jean and Beanie, the two very young boys who never go for a walk that some newspaper's society photographer doesn't snap them. Marguerite calls the youngsters the Kaeselau publicity and suggests sending them forth to the Gardens with posters on their front and back announcing their father's and mothers' profession and accessibility for commissions! One morning Charles was giving way to mild profanity when Jean, the younger, somewhere around three, asked mother what daddy was saying. Now M. believes firmly in answering all questions truthfully but, with a little evasion, she admitted to Jean that father was Swedish and had therefore certain peculiarities of speech. A little later M. was reduced to the same verbal expressiveness when Beanie, aged four, calmly looked up and said, "But Mummie you're not Swedish, too?"

"LET'S SMITH IT"

Tea and we've just eavesdropped on a grand colloquialism. Two women were at the T table . . . the first said, "Do you mind if I Smith it?" and went on to explain . . . "We used to know a woman whose name was Smith. She always helped herself first and let others wait in hunger. So there grew up around her the expression 'Let's Smith it.'"

AROUND AND ABOUT

We used to give ourselves up to boredom when forced to listen to tales of our traveled friends . . . now it's almost pitiful the way we pump them for meagre column crumbs . . . friends returning from Denmark mention that if Danish girls went out on blind dates, with this and that man they would be just beyond the pale . . . it's the custom to go with one man exclusively . . . doesn't allow much chance for a re-deal. In Denmark, too, it's easy to get the alcoholic habit for, while Java is served black, it also contains half rum . . . another, more fortunate than we, has been spending the winter in Cuba where she says tipping is hard on the residents for you can't even go to the P. O. for your mail without tipping the Post Master . . . We saw some funny things yesterday . . . Tuesday is a better day for seeing things—people aren't so obviously walking around in their sleep as they are on Mondays . . . a colored doorman at Shreve Crump's has artistic leanings for he was helping the window decorator arrange the silver service exactly as it should look from the outside . . . a doorman in front of the Union Club with haughty mein was sweeping peanut shells from off the sacred walk with a whisk broom . . . a boy driving a car honked at a pigeon preoccupied with his diet. When the bird failed to locomote the boy stopped his bus and waited.

DISPATCHES from Paris indicate that those sections of the exotic East and mysterious Africa, which are French Colonial possessions, are influencing a vogue that will soon be in full sway. Ivory elephants, carved in Indo China . . . bizarre leather cushions from Morocco . . . scarves of native design in a veritable riot of tangerine, yellow and green, gorgeous prayer rugs and tapestries are among the fascinating things now on the high seas, America bound. Algiers and Morocco, reached in about two days from Marseilles, have been Meccas for seekers after the products which interpret the barbaric spirit of this sun-drenched land across the sea. Thus does a fashion trend come into being and, gathering momentum, travel from coast to coast . . . and from Canada to New Orleans.

PAN-EUROPEAN PARLEY FACES SOVIET CLASH

Geneva, May 14 (AP)—A stormy session, with Soviet Russia and the Austro-German customs union in the spotlight, is forecast for the commission on European union which resumes its work here tomorrow.

It was only after four days' hot debate that the European body asked the Soviet to join it, and then only for the purpose of studying factors in the European economic situation. Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign minister, in replying, cast aspersions on the spirit of the commission, and announced:

"The Soviet Government has decided to take part in the forthcoming proceedings of the commission."

A European union, said M. Litvinoff, could hardly exclude Russia. He pointed out that Russia in Europe constitutes nearly 45 per cent of European territory; that Switzerland, which opposed Soviet participation in the commission, has only four-tenths of 1 per cent of Europe's area, and Norway, another objector to the Soviets, holds only 3.1 per cent of geographical Europe.

"It is incomprehensible and surprising," the Moscow commissar declared, "that a group of European states should arrogate to themselves the right to decide on the admission or non-admission of another group of European states to a community which claims the title of 'Pan-European.'"

CHICAGO HOLDS GAY JUBILEE

Chicago, May 14—The biggest "Main street" in the world making merry!

Celebrating the all-Chicago jubilee, joining with the Chicago Herald and Examiner in heralding its golden anniversary. That was State st. last night.

The world has probably never seen another street fair, a mardi gras or carnival like it.

Tens of thousands of Chicagoans in festive mood were flocking in an illuminated canyon between the staid rows of the most impressive merchant houses in the country. It was State st.'s own glorification of itself, of the city whose heart it is.

Six famous radio orchestras stationed at street intersections, at the same time played an air that set all dancing from one end of the carnival canal to the other. There were quartets, vaudeville topliners, clowns, vocalists, musicians operating on everything from a piano to the old "doghouse" bull fiddle.

There were the American public's companions from the Hearst newspapers.

They were all there—"Tillie the Toiler," joining with the stenos from a hundred other loop offices, and her boy friend, "Mac." They were dancing. And there, too, were "Maggie," dragging along the browbeaten Jiggs," Barney Google" lighting up a carnival cigar that—watch out!—will probably explode. "The Katzenjammer Kids," playing their sly tricks on the crowd. "Dolly and Bobby," out for a friendly time.

PILGRIMS MEET IN HONOR OF POPE LEO

Rome. May 14 (AP)—Ten thousand pilgrims from all parts of the world met today in celebration of the 40th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's encyclical rerum novarum on labor.

Bishop Edwin V. O'Hara of Great Falls, Mont., headed the American delegation which included representatives of a dozen labor organizations.

This morning they attended the Pontifical mass in the Church of St. John Lateran and this afternoon there was a meeting in the Papal Chancery building where delegates spoke in many languages of the far-reaching effects of the encyclical in their own countries.

Bishop O'Hara, speaking for the United States, declared the memorable document still exercises a great influence in the United States.

"Every nation sends the same message," hes aid, "that potent leaven which Pope Leo placed in modern industrialism has influenced economic and social thinking and lifted the banner of religion and morality in a field supposed to be concerned only with self-interest and private gain.

"A few years ago many felt that a new era had been entered in which prosperity was universally assured and poverty about to be banished by the mere progress of industry.

"Unfortunately teh world has had to learn again the hard lesson that disregard for moral principles makes industry a tyrannous task master for them ultitude.

"The new era will be introduced only when industry accepts the principles of justice and charity promulgated by Pope Leo and listens docilely to the authoritative voice of the sovereign Pontiff."

12 'CHOSEN' TO RUN G. O. P.

Washington, May 14—The latest political rumor in Washington is that Maj.Gen. James G. Harbord, who retired from the army to direct the Radio Corporation of America, is being considered for the chairmanship of the Republican national committee.

Harbord's name is only one of a dozen that have cropped up in discussion of the chairmanship in recent weeks. There has been talk of "Dave" Mulvane, national committeeman from Kansas," ex-Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas, Ray Benjamin of California, who now has a desk in the committee headquarters, and is supposed to be Mr. Hoover's personal representative, and others.

Mr. Hoover is reported to have urged Benjamin to accept the job, but the Californian is said to be reluctant to take it for business reasons.

Whether Harbord has been actually offered the chairmanship has not been ascertained. His friends expect him to retire from the Radio Corporation before long.

Jap Ends a 14-Day 'Hunger Strike' on Top of Chimney

Tokio, May 14 (AP)—A 14-day hunger strike on top of a chimney was ended today, when Hiroshi Chiba allowed himself to be lowered to earth in a basket on the settlement of a dispute between a local dye works and workmen, with whom he sympathized.

Hiroshi was weak, but entirely conscious and was taken to a hospital. While atop the chimney he had threatened to throw himself to the ground if attempts were made to remove him.

Doctors who climbed to the chimney top Tuesday found Hiroshi's condition grave and gave him injections to keep him alive.

SPRING CRUISES SOUTH ARE POPULAR

The Ocean Steamship Co. announces spring and summer cruises to Savannah and St. Simon's Island.

The Savannah Line all-expense cruises vary from short cruise of seven days to 13 days or even longer, and include practically every possible expense at a minimum cost.

These all-expense cruises include from two days' to a week's stay at either of Savannah's two modern hotels, the De Soto or the Savannah, which offer the best possible introduction to the Southern hospitality.

Some years ago, few persons would have considered a Southern cruise only in the winter. But now, Southern cruises are proving the most popular of vacation cruises. This change has been brought about by the experienced travelers who have spread the fame of cool days and cooler nights aboard a Savannah liner and the delightful summer climate of Savannah.

The vessels of the Savannah Line fleet are large modern ships equipped with the most modern devices for the safety and comfort of guests. This line is famous for its cuisine, and the courteous and efficient service rendered aboard ship.

Further information and literature may be had by writing to the Ocean Steamship Co. of Savannah, Pier, 42, Hoosac Tunnel Docks.

Pullman Comfort on Niagara Trips Pleases

The extraordinary response to over-night excursion travel in pullman cars on Niagara Falls excursions has been met by the Boston & Albany Railway in planning another such trip for Friday, May 29.

Formerly excursions were confined entirely to day coaches, but with the addition of Pullman cars to the trains, excursionists may enjoy more comforts to the Falls.

Excursionists will have the opportunity in the evening to witness the magnificent and awe-inspiring electrical illumination of the Falls.

WEEK-END TRIP TO BANGOR

The Eastern Steamship Lines announces a weekend excursion on the Bangor Line Friday, the 15th. The return trip will be made on Saturday.

With this excursion the round trip rates will be the One-Way Fare plus $1.00. The ships in this service are the Camden and Belfast.

Show Boat Opens for Season Tonight

Joe Rines

Joe Rines will direct an augmented National Broadcasting orchestra. Other features will be in evidence every evening. The entire staff of Lido Venice, which closed May 2 for the season will be in evidence.

SPECIAL RATES FOR SAIL TO NEW YORK

The big ships Boston and New York of the Eastern Steamship Lines will carry several hundred excursionists between Boston and New York next Saturday, Sunday and Monday. This will be the first time the public will have had an opportunity to travel on these ships at excursion rates.

The New York will leave Boston on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock and at the same hour the Boston will leave New York for Boston with New Yorkers who will spend the week-end in Boston and vicinity.

To give the public a chance to have an inexpensive holiday in New York or Boston the Eastern Steamship Lines have reduced the round trip fare to about one-half the regular fare.

Judging from early reservations both ships will be filled with passengers. One of the delightful features of the Boston-New York trip is the trip through the Cape Cod Canal.

The ships' orchestras have arranged special dance programs for the excursions and during the trips the vessels will be in constant touch with the principal radio stations throughout the United States and Canada.

The stewards' department has also planned special dinners and breakfasts. Last night reservations for the trip from Boston were made by a group of 100 persons from Boston and suburbs.

Passengers who board the Saturday night ships at Boston or New York will be permitted to return to their homes either on Sunday or Monday.

WOMEN HOLDING MUCH STOCK OF RAILWAY

St. Paul, Minn., May 14—The capital stock of the Great Northern railway is distributed among nearly 38,000 stockholders, nearly half of whom are women.

This widespread ownership is shown by a check of the records just completed by F. L. Paetzold, secretary-treasurer, in preparation for the annual meeting of stockholders here tomorrow.

JAMES' HOLDINGS LARGEST

Ranking next in holdings of Great Northern shares is George F. Baker, Jr., of New York, son of the late George F. Baker, who died a few days ago. Baker is shown as owning 25,000 shares.

PROXY FROM BAKER

Only a few of the stockholders attend the annual meetings in person, the number usually being about a dozen. Owners of more than half of the stock have sent in proxies to a committee of directors. Among the proxies is one signed by George F. Baker shortly before his death.

The principal business at tomorrow's meeting will be the filling of four places on the board of directors. The directors whose terms expire are Mr. Budd, Vincent Astor, W. P. Kenney, vice-president and director of traffic, and E. T. Nichols, vice-president in charge of the New York financial offices.

Following the stockholders' meeting, the directors will leave on an inspection trip over the system.

WILKINS SUB'S TESTS O. K.

New London, Conn., May 14 (UP)—The first salt-water diving test of the trans-polar submarine Nautilus was termed a complete success by her commander, Lieu. Commander Sloan Danenhower.

The vessel was submerged to a depth of 43 feet yesterday in the Thames river off the U. S. submarine base here, and remained under water approximately two hours.

Commander Danenhower said that all apparatus was checked during the test and found to be in perfect working order. He added:

"We have demonstrated the Nautilus can be operated in both fresh and salt water. I believe we have taken a long stride forward toward the actual start of our voyage with Sir Hubert Wilkins under the ice of the North Pole."

The Nautilus was to come to Long Island sound today for further dives. The submarine was scheduled for a 100-foot submerging in the sound and a 200-foot test was planned for Friday.

Leaders in aviation, the stage and business world will honor Sir Hubert at a luncheon today.

Rainy Day Railroad Is Sold to B. & O. for $50,000

Kane, Pa., May 14 (INS)—Kane's "rainy day" railroad—the only railroad in the world operating in wet weather exclusively—today was in the hands of its new owner, the Baltimore & Ohio, which purchased the Kushequa line for $50,000 and assumed accounts totalling $7000.

Trains on the Kushequa line were permitted to run only on rainy days because its trackage extended through a thickly grown forest region and it was feared sparks from the locomotives might cause destructive forest fires.

"The plan consists in acting promptly at the outbreak of war [illegible] the organization which was effect in the latter part of 1918 and was then functioning successfully," Crowell said.

COOL, BUBBLING CHELMSFORD

costs only a few cents a glass

THIRSTY? Dry in the throat? Need a long, cool drink? Here's a big glassful of Chelmsford. And here's another. Several glassfuls cannot hurt you; for Chelmsford is made only of the finest ginger, of just enough sugar to please, and of bubbling fresh carbonated water. That is all. And because of our facilities, Chelmsford costs only a few cents a glass for five bubbling glassfuls.

Drink Chelmsford in sips. Or tip up the glassful and drink it down. It is pure, wholesome. It penetrates your whole thirsty body. Cool, gingery—not too mild—yet mild enough for children to love it, too, it's the ginger ale for every member of the family.

Buy it at grocery, confectionery, drug, and delicatessen stores. Keep plenty, chilled on ice. Such refreshment, at such savings, is important these days. Treat yourself also to the other Chelmsford flavors, Golden, Lemon and Lime, and Orange Ale.

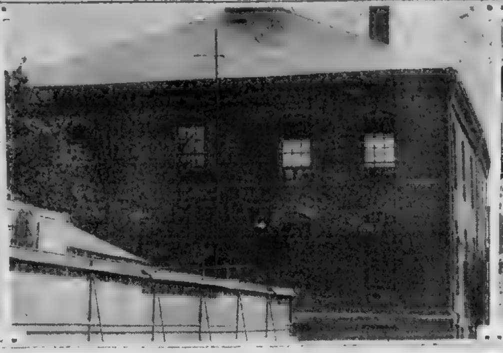
LIVES OF CHILDREN IN DAILY PERIL IN SCHOOLS MINUS FIRE ESCAPES

IRENE PAINE BARBARA FROST THELMA J. BRIGHT

THEIR SCHOOL HIT BY GOODWIN



58 YEARS A SCHOOL: STILL MINUS ESCAPES

DON'T THESE CHILDREN DESERVE A CHANCE TO ESCAPE FIRE PERIL?

The lives of thousands of bright-eyed youngsters from all sections of the city are in peril every school day, according to Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of the Finance Commission, who declares 94 Boston public schools are without fire escapes. A survey by the Boston American today revealed the Tappan school in Lexington st., East Boston, built in 1873 and housing two kindergarten classes and six primary grades, as one of those attacked by Mr. Goodwin. Other schools similar to the Tappan were also listed by the finance commissioner. The old East Boston school, with wooden stairways, and a few of the more than 300 bright-eyed pupils at the school are shown here. (Staff photos.)

FEDERAL AGENTS SET NEW RUM RING TRAPS

DAILY TRUE STORY

THE OTHER WOMAN

DICK AND PHYLLIS FOUND A MOMENT

"I KNOW it's taking an awful chance, but I'm going to marry you just the same."

Dick and Phyllis paused for a moment on the woodland path. Dick held the slim young girl in his arms and kissed her.

"Oh, Phyllis," he said, "I shouldn't let you do it, knowing myself as I do. But with you, it's all different. I've changed. I'm going to cut all the others, forever, never look at any of them and devote myself to making you happy. You deserve it, darling."

They sat down by the side of a pool. The girl idly dipped her fingers in the cool, clear water.

"I believe in you," she said. "No one else ever has. You've just been the very trying son of the very rich Kendrick Bangs to your home town. They've never given you a chance to be serious. You've flirted with the town's lovelier women, that divorcee you knew—last—she's the only one that worries me at all."

Dick Laughed

"You Needn't Worry"

Dick laughed heartily. "You mean Renee? Well, honey, you have nothing to worry about. She and I understand each other perfectly, we're just good pals."

"That's why I'm worried. You still like her. You didn't really break with her the way you did with the others."

"Break? There was nothing to break. We're like brother and sister, at least we are now."

"Now?" Phyllis' deep gray eyes grew cloudy. Her smile turned suddenly into a frown. "Now? You said you were through with all of them, never going to see them again, any of them."

"Oh, of course, and I meant it, but Renee's situation is a little different. She's very lonely in this town. None of the town's smart set cares for her. Divorce isn't a popular pastime in Berkville. She's declassee.

"If I stopped seeing her, she'd have exactly no one left. Honey, she's going to be our friend, not just mine. You're going to like her when you really know her."

Part-Time Wife

Phyllis Refuses to Be One

"I'm not going to be a part time wife for a man who can't relinquish his former sweetheart when he gets married. Never!"

"Phyllis!"

"Here, take your ring. Oh, I'm glad to have found this out before it's too late. Don't ever come near me again—ever."

A week passed and Dick made no attempt to see Phyllis or to call her on the phone. She was miserable at his light and carefree acceptance of losing her. Then a letter came from him, which said:

"Phil, old girl—you were right. A man should not have more than one woman. Monogamy is essential for the welfare of the race. Richard Moreland Bangs is going to marry the one woman in the world for him. Be prepared for full explanations tonight at eight.

"DICK."

Phyllis was playing tennis with Cliff Dale when the maid brought Dick's letter to her. Cliff had been asking her to marry him ever since she could remember, and he took this occasion of this brief rest to ask her again.

"No," she said joyfully, "No, I'll never marry you. You might as well stop asking me."

Ernest C. Hill, news cameraman, who was arrested by Arlington policemen preventing snapshotting of Mrs. John J. Raskob, Jr., at East Cambridge District Court last week, pleaded not guilty to disturbing the peace today and the case was continued to May 21 for hearing.

The arrest occurred on the day Mrs. Raskob, daughter-in-law of the national Democratic chairman, was fined $20 for driving to the left of a street car, in doing which she knocked down and injured an Arlington boy.

Hill was arrested by Patrolman Robert A. Burns, when he and others protested at being ordered away from the exit, where they were waiting for Mrs. Raskob. She was taken out a rear way by the officers.

COAST GUARD AIDS IN WAR ON 2 GANGS

"Mother Ship" of the Powerful Syndicate Known; Sea Hunted for Boats

The federal trap that closed upon one huge rum syndicate in Dorchester yesterday was reset and baited today for two more.

Customs agents called upon the coast guard for aid in capturing two more rum-running gangs known to be contacting with a "mother" ship off the coast in efforts to land illicit cargoes somewhere between Boston and Provincetown.

The identity of the rum ship and her whereabouts are known to the customs men. She lies 17 miles off Boston Light. She sailed from St. Pierre, Miquelon, six weeks ago with liquor valued at close to $2,000,000 aboard.

LEADERS ARE KNOWN

Also known to the federal authorities, and made known by them to the coast guard, are the identities of ringleaders of the two syndicates making contacts with her.

The mother ship, well outside the limit, cannot be molested, but all boats contacting with her will be followed by the coast guard and overhauled and searched if they approach the coast.

The capture yesterday of 23 men, including "Big John" Magnus, notorious rum conspirator, 892 cases of whiskey, nine autos and two speedboats resulted from a five-weeks' undercover investigation conducted by Deputy Collector Thomas Finnegan, Customs Agent Owen McKenna and Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert C. Thompson.

McKenna and a group of customs men made a five-weeks' survey of the coast line between Provincetown and Boston, including both sides of Cape Cod, visiting known smugglers' hideouts.

COMES WITH CARGO.

This was undertaken following receipt of information that the "mother" ship had sailed from St. Pierre for the Massachusetts coast.

The most important information gathered during the investigation resulted from a check of registration plates of New York automobiles noted on the Cape.

Since two weeks ago Saturday night five important landing places between Boston and Plymouth have been under constant surveillance. Two smaller captures, one at Scituate and one at Braintree, have resulted from the present investigation.

LAWS URGED TO BALK RAIL GRAB IN N. ENGLAND

Judge Redmond of the Central Vermont Outlines Local "Salvation" Plan

Legislation prohibiting any trunk line from obtaining control of any New England railroad was advocated today by Judge John W. Redmond, vice-president and general counsel of the Central Vermont Railway.

Speaking at the final hearing of the legislative committee on transportation, Judge Redmond declared that local lines should be permitted to work out their own salvation.

VITAL TO VERMONT

"What is the matter with this patient, New England railroad transportation?" he asked. "Wherein does it not best serve the people of New England? It is manifestly unwise to dose a patient until you first determine what is the matter with him."

Judge Redmond explained his views were entirely personal, as the Central Vermont Railway, owned and controlled by the Canadian National Railways, is hesitant to attempt to influence the people of New England, but will cordially aid in any plan decided on.

He said the question of consolidation of New England lines is of vital importance to Vermont through which passes most of the New York and New England traffic of the Canadian National and substantially all of the New England freight and passenger traffic the New York Central can give the Rutland Railroad.

FAVORS ONE GROUP.

All this traffic is highly competitive, Judge Redmond said, with the only competition coming from the trunk lines.

If New England railroads must be grouped, according to Judge Redmond, one group will be the best plan.

"The railroads of New England constitute a unit in location, interest, environment and competition," he said.

He added it would be difficult to obtain the consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission to this grouping, as it might be claimed competition would be eliminated.

FIVE AND TEN

Rarick Has a Scheme to Help Avery in Finding an Avocation for Himself

By Fannie Hurst

(Copyright, 1929, by Fannie Hurst.)

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

IT WAS in his role of patron of the arts that the Committee of Internationalists, Inc., which was one day to be of the most potent forces in the young theater movement in America, came before Rarick.

They were three. A young fellow named Trigoloff with a crooked and strangely powerful profile, who had written a two-act play in 31 episodes which had been produced in a cellar called the Rhomboid Theater. A Miss Virginia Adelbert, with blonde hair, cropped, polished, and parted on the side, like a boy's, in tailored clothes, soft shirt, and who carried her crush felt hat under her arm, and her package of cigarettes protruding from a tailored pocket.

Comedy Success

The third member of this group Gratton Davies, was a young professor of dramatic composition at a city university. His comedy, "Herod's Mask," had been a success the season before. Here was a fellow of such abounding and amusing enthusiasm that it was inevitable he should have been elected spokesman for this occasion.

He had a thatch of thick tan hair, which jumped and fell from the roots as he sat on the edge of his chair, his opening sentence accomplishing what it set out to do as concisely as a good headline flare of advertising.

"Mr. Rarick, we have chosen you to sponsor what is without any doubt to be the most significant and far-reaching experiment in the history of the American theater. I used the word 'chosen' advisedly, because the man who is granted the privilege of bringing to life our plan is going to get a ride for his money to the peak of artistic-success-with-a-box-office-value."

Much Fervor

"Yes, young man?" said Rarick with a bitter kind of mockery playing around his lips. This was not the fellow himself speaking. This was the young scholar, suiting his phrase, his manner, and his matter to his man. In other words, "selling his idea" to big business.

The fervor of his presentation was all right, but the manner was the rehearsed one of a traveling salesman.

Young Davies was talking down to Rarick in terms of the one aspect of the enterprise that interested him least of all, and yet which was so essential to the very life and breath of their beautiful baby of an idea, Money. Without it, that beautiful baby must perish aborning.

"Money, Mr. Rarick, is what we need for you."

His resentments, he told himself were absurd. What else had he to offer? Presently these three, and the confreres who spoke their language, would recede into the laboratories of their imaginations. They could talk to one another from these laboratories. Where did he, Rarick, come in? Why sit stiffly before this young barker up the Himalayas and bark back a bitter "Yes, young man," into his enthusiasms.

Not All Visionary

These three before him were in the heydey of their walking-trip through the Pyrenees. Their walking-trip was coming off, too.

"Don't think, Mr. Rarick, that our ideas are all visionary. We don't propose to drive the commercial theater out of business. Nothing of the sort."

Now, don't you?"

"No, sir. We propose to supplant, in time—with thought, with discrimination, with genius, with money—the garbage of the present commercial theater, by giving the people pre-digested, intellectual, artistic, and entertaining fodder. But it is not so much a matter of throwing out the commercial theater, Mr. Rarick, as cleaning out the Augean dramatic stables. That is why we dare to approach you with a proposition which will ultimately grant you full return on your money. Not that you are interested in exacting any such guaranty as that from us, but——"

Young rascal! Young walker in the Pyrenees. Young three there, who presently, once outside his doors, would revert to the swift, ruthless well-informed talk of their own world, and who might even ape and deride the holder of the strings of the money bags . . .

" . . . Of course, I am not here to bore you with our standards of production, the literary ideals we have set for ourselves . . ."

"Why not?" barked Rarick. "You can't put your cart before your horse."

"What Mr. Davies means," hastened Miss Adelbert, "is that we have long ago threshed out our literary policies. That ha-

YOUNGMAN SPLITS G. O. P. WIDE OPEN IN BIG POLITICAL WAR

KNOW WHO THEY ARE?

When royalty reminisces. Even royalty likes to look back upon the happy days of the past, here recalled by this photograph of the present King George and Queen Mary of England as they appeared in 1897 at the brilliant Devonshire House ball. Note how surprisingly little the royal pair has changed during the intervening 34 years. At the time this photo was made the present sovereigns were the Duke and Duchess of York. KIND BANDITS GIVE BACK $2

Three gunmen were out practicing during the night, but, according to the police, they ought to go to school some mrs and learn how it's done.

First they parked their car, with New York plates, between the Swampscott fire headquarters and the police station, on Burrell st., and "stuck up" Paul Shaffner of High Rock st., Lynn.

"Fork over," they said.

"Haven't got a dime," retored Shaffner, and the gunmen fled.

Then they appeared in Peabody at 4:15 a. m. and held up Nathan Member of Salem, driving a bakery route. They took $2 from him.

"Is that all you've got?" they asked him.

"It may not be much to you, but it's a lot to me," said Member. "The wife is sick and times are pretty hard."

"Well, when is collection day?" he was asked.

"Sunday," said Member.

"We'll meet you here Sunday morning; here's your $2," they told him. "Don't tell the police."

They fled and Member told Patrolmen Bernard Gill and George Kingsley, but he had been too frightened to note their descriptions.

PENS PRAYER AS GAS KILLS HER

The suicide of Mrs. Jean Murray, 47, by gas, which also caused the death of her husband, James Murray, 49, in Irvington, N. J., has brought a sad duty on their daughter, Agnes, now Mrs. Forrest H. King, of Robbins rd., Arlington.

It was to Mrs. King that the last letter of her mother was addressed. In this note she scrawled her hope that the gas fumes would not reach her husband, sleeping in an adjoining bedroom.

It was apparently written as she was being overcome by the gas fumes from the open jets of the kitchen range.

Irvington police say that a neighbor, Mrs. Guy Doremus, told them Mrs. King visited her parents with her two small children and left there last Monday. She also told them Mrs. Murray had been talking of taking her life.

The first part of the small note, police said, was clear and apparently was written before Mrs. Murray felt the effects of the gas. Toward the end of the letter they could only make out a few scattered words and phrases.

THE NEW HAVEN R.R.

PUSHES FIGHT ON LIGGETT AND TAYLOR

Lieutenant-Governor Backed in Demands by Other Party Leaders

With National Committeeman Louis K. Liggett and State Committee Chairman Amos L. Taylor apparently defying Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman to do his worst in his "demand" that they retire from their positions, the G. O. P. is today split wide open.

In his ultimatum to the Liggett-Taylor forces, Youngman has the backing of such leaders as former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin and President Robert M. Washburn of the Roosevelt Club.

The ex-registrar has denounced Liggett and Taylor as "stuffed shirts" and "political chiselers." Washburn has advised Liggett to follow "Alfonso."

The Youngman decision to declare open warfare is the result of the smashing defeat given in the House to the Liggett-Taylor pre-primary convention bill.

SEES BETRAYAL OF HOOVER

"By their attacks upon me of the past weeks it is evident that they have attempted to betray the Republican holding the highest elective office in Massachusetts," Youngman said.

He also charged Liggett and Taylor with trying to "betray President Hoover through the so-called delegates bill, which the Senate recently rejected.

He claims that if the delegates bill had passed it would have allowed "pledged" delegates to go to the national convention without the President's consent and be in a position to "desert" him on the first ballot.

"I don't consider him an individual of any responsibility and it would be futile for me to discuss political affairs with him," was Liggett's comeback to the Youngman demand for his scalp.

Liggett declared that until he has had an opportunity to study the Youngman statement in its entirety he did not care to engage in any discussion with the lieutenant-governor other than to ask him two questions.

Chairman Taylor treated the ultimatum with silence.

Youngman stated that if Liggett and Taylor remain in spite of his demand for their resignations, their "honors will be empty."

"Furthermore," he said, "it must be plain that nobody really interested in the welfare of the Republican party will make contributions for campaign expenditures to such discredited party managers.

ACCEPTANCE OF BILL BOOSTS 'L' STOCK

Enactment of Measure Is Believed Certain; Ely Is to Sign on Passage

An upward trend of the prices of Boston Elevated stock today followed acceptance of the bill extending public control for 28 years, by the House yesterday, with the probability of its enactment.

The reaction was most marked in the sale of common stock, which opened at 78¼, a gain of 6¾ points over yesterday's closing. First preferred sold for 105, a gain of four points, while second preferred was up 4½ points, opening at 94½. Later it dropped off to 93¾.

The Senate, it is understood, will pass the measure by a substantial majority and Governor Ely has already indicated that it will meet with his approval.

2 AMENDMENTS MADE

The vote in the House came after a hectic debate lasting two hours and one-half, in the course of which Representative C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus was repeatedly warned not to make reference to Governor Ely. Pratt persisted in his endeavors and was finally seated by Speaker Leverett Saltonstall.

The House accepted amendments made by Representatives Albert F. Bigelow of Brookline and Eliot Wadsworth of Boston and rejected amendments offered by Representative John P. Higgins of the West End and by Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Boston.

A motion made by Rep. Clarence S. Luitwieler of Newton which would authorize the metropolitan transit district, composed of the cities and towns served by the El, to take over all the stock of the road, was ruled out of order as being outside the scope of the public control question before the House.

MAY PROBE DEFICITS

The Bigelow amendment put back into the bill a section relating to subway leases, which was inadvertently left out of the measure.

The Wadsworth amendment give the public utilities commission the right to investigate the management of the road whenever deficits are threatened and to fix responsibility for poor management or other defects.

Under the rejected Sullivan amendment, dividends on common stock would have been reduced to 4 per cent. The bill as passed reduces the present dividend on the common stock from 6 to 5 per cent.

RAN ERRANDS BY DAY; ROBBER AT NIGHT

16-Year-Old Mattapan Boy Caught in Building Confesses Four Breaks

Four breaks in downtown buildings were admitted today in a signed confession by a 16-year-old Mattapan boy, according to the police, who say the lad was a very energetic errand boy by day and an equally enthusiastic cracksman at night.

Because he had a full kit of burglars' tools, police suspect he had older accomplices, and search is on for two older youths.

Although the boy said it was his own idea to get a job where he could see the "inside workings" of different offices, the authorities suspect a "Fagin" in the background.

The boy was held for arraignment in juvenile court and because of his youth his name is withheld pending further developments.

These are the breaks he is said to have confessed in his nightly switch "from errand boy to burglar."

April 24, broke into 195 Congress st. and stole $33 from the safe in the office of the R. J. Thoms Co.

April 28, broke into the building at 288-280 Devonshire st., knocked the combination off the safe of the Louis E. Moran Co., but could not get the safe open.

May 9, broke into the office of the Arnold Roberts Co., Congress st. This was also a failure.

Last night he was seen on the sixth floor of 596 Atlantic ave., by Miss Annie L. Dowley of Washington st., Somerville, and Miss Ellen Laney of Morrison ave., Somerville, proofreaders, on their way home. They told police and he was captured in a closet.

Investigating a break in his own house, where the thief took his policeman's club, Inspector Earle Elliott of Somerville arrested a 15-year-old schoolboy today after a search lasting a month.

The boy pleaded guilty in Somerville District Court to this break and to another at the home of ex-Mayor Z. E. Cliff of Somerville, and the case was continued to Saturday for the juvenile session, bail being set at $1000.

As it is a juvenile case, the boy's name is withheld. Elliott, who lives on Powderhouse ter., said he found the club and a glass-cutter in a search of the boy's room.

FOUR WITH SAME NAME TO WED

The clerk in the marriage license bureau was puzzled. Four people with unusual names stood before him, applying for licenses to wed—and all the surnames were the same.

Lester J. d'Entremont—another marine engineer, but no relative of Theodore's—was applying for a license to marry Admanta d'Entremont.

Lester and Ethel are brother and sister. Aside from that, there is no blood relationship. The four are natives of Pubnico, Nova Scotia.

The four, close friends [illegible] childhood, will be married on June 14 at St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury.

Chas. B. Devereaux Dies in Arlington

Charles B. Devereaux, 66, one of Arlington's leading citizens, died today. He had been chairman of the Board of Selectmen for many years. Born in Boston, Mr. Devereaux was associated with the Boston engineers' supply firm of the A. W. Chesterton Co. He was treasurer of the concern for years.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Norman Kennedy of Arlington and Mrs. George Woosley of Fort Myers, Fla., and two sisters, Mrs. Blanche Plum of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Florence Caswell of Brookline. He was a Mason.

MORE PROTEST HULL BRIDGE

More opposition to a proposed bridge connecting Boston and Hull, a $20,000,000 project now before the Senate, developed today at a State House hearing before the committee on highways and motor vehicles.

Miss Mary Pope, lifelong resident of Quincy, who owns property which would be spanned by the bridge, said her mother had given land to the state for development of the parkway there and that she feared the bridge would cut Quincy Bay in halves, spoiling the boulevard and the view.

She demanded that proponents reveal positive plans and asked that the bill be killed without further consideration if such plans were not submitted.

Others who spoke in protest were William McIsaac, representing the American International Engineering Association; John Connolly, president of the Dorchester Board of Trade; Edward Hamlin, former president of the Metropolitan Coal Co.; Anthony Veader, harbor master of Weymouth, and George T. Creehan of the Old Colony Yacht Club.

A new motor coach service between Boston and Concord, N. H., with extended service by connecting motor coach to Newport, N. H., will be established by the Boston & Maine Transportation Co., commencing tomorrow, it was announced today.

IT MAY BE LUCE OR DALLINGER

A plan for the consolidation of the eighth and thirteenth congressional districts represented by Congressmen Frederick W. Dallinger and Robert Luce, respectively, was to be submitted late today by the legislative sub-committee on congressional redistricting to the main committee.

It was reported that the plan was opposed by Senator Angier L. M. Goodwin of Melrose, a resident of Dallinger's district. He is preparing a second plan on the matter.

The members of the sub-committee have decided that because Massachusetts is to lose one representative in Congress under the last census the eighth and thirteenth districts, which adjoin, are the best to consolidate.

MAN, 77, BRAGS THAT HE 'SELLS BEST LIQUOR'

Calls Self "Public Benefactor" in Court; Admits That He Doesn't Drink Himself

"I am a public benefactor. I sell the finest liquor in the world."

Daniel G. Tenney, 77, of Sheppard st., Haverhill, arraigned in federal court today on a liquor indictment, pleaded not guilty and made this statement to Judge James A. Lowell.

"Do you drink it?" asked Judge Lowell.

"No," I just taste it," said Tenney. "A man is a fool to get drunk, and when a man is drunk I refuse to sell him liquor."

"Do you attribute your long life to liquor?" asked the court.

"No; I said I don't drink," replied Tenney.

"Are you old enough to know you ought not violate the law?" asked Asst. U. S. Atty. Elihu D. Stone.

"Yes, but any law to which 80 per cent of the people are opposed is no law," shot back the defendant.

Judge Lowell asked him if he would be on hand for trial later if allowed to go on his own recognizance and Tenney replied:

"My family has been in this country 300 years and not one of them ever broke his word. I'll be here when the gong rings."

"THE THIRD LITTLE SHOW" IS SWIFTLY MOVING ENTERTAINMENT

Miss Lillie Tops Cast of Stars

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Exactly why the current entertainment at the Wilbur should be billed as a "little show" is not quite clear. It is anything but that. Being the third edition of a particular brand of fluff that tired business men enjoy in nocturnal expeditions, the promoters, Dwight Wiman and Tom Weatherly, have merely followed the line of least resistance and called it [illegible] Third Little Show. As these Little Shows apparently come to us in serial order, comparisons, though vulgar, are inevitable. The First Little Show was a wow (whatever that may be); the Second was a flop. And now the Third—a riot.

Musical revue under any direction just naturally becomes a matter of homespun direction, girls and song, frisky (risque) comedy, and hours of this, that and another. By these standards the Third Little Show carried a full load. Its humors were excellent, and its melodies tuneful, but highly reminiscent. What a blessing—these petty details. They're the Broadway guarantee. By this time you must know that the Third Little Show is swiftly moving entertainment, clean and simple—if not always clean, always simple. Musical revue, if you will take my word for it, is chiefly an enterprising flair in specialized vaudeville. Somebody does something a little better than it had ever been done before. Collectively, that is musical revue; it calls justly to the multitude.

In all these accumulated essentials (you may call them first principles in showmanship, if you please), the Third Little Show revealed wealth and understanding. Any revue is just a show: something in words and music—but not always. In the affair at hand you had Beatrice Lillie to relieve any threatened monotony. There were no lapses, of course, but Miss Lillie nobly carried on, digging laughs out of a cavernous stage and selling them freely to eager customers.

If Miss Lillie and her overseas humor tickled the crowd, the chatter of Walter O'Keefe kept all the rest of us on this side of the ocean. Mr. O'Keefe, you discovered, told everything but bed-time stories. He even may have held a few in reserve, but none were forthcoming. However, not only did he do well for himself in the Third Little Show but he gave a friendly hand to every stuttering sister in the ensemble. Mr. O'Keefe was the life of the party.

• • •

Not in proper order, perhaps, but Ernest Truex and Carl Randall shared modestly in the day's honors. Truex played his first role as a gentleman in revue and he rather successfully proved it. Mr. Randall gave us one novelty—a frisky dance with legerdemain on the side. It was short, but filling, good magic and better dancing. This Third Little Show is better than the Second, but cannot be held in the same respect as the First. That was a revue! However with Beatrice Lillie, who has ways of her own, and Ernest Truex, who tries hard and is really a very nice boy, the show at the Wilbur, with wrinkles removed, will take Broadway by the ears and make a soft summer for the speculators.

United Artists in New Home

Charles Stern, manager, and Abe Weiner, office manager of the United Artists Corporation, held open house for the exhibitor and public in the dedication of their new exchange for this district. The hosts provided entertainment for 300 or more film men who came to wish them success.

The exchange, on Church st., has been completely remodeled with modernistic design and all steel furniture, comparable with any exchange in the United States.

SHIPMATES OFTEN DISAGREE

Dramatic Capture of Slayers in Hearst Metrotone News

One of the most dramatic pictures ever shown upon the screen is presented in natural sound and thrillingly described by The Globe Trotter in the Hearst Metrotone News. It depicts the tragedy of real life that accompanied the capture of the New York bandits "Two-Gun" Francis Crowley and Rudolph Duringer, and Crowley's 16-year-old "moll," Helen Walsh.

The crowd of more than 10,000 persons gathered around the apartment house in peaceful West 90th st., just off West End ave., New York; the dropping of tear gas bombs into the besieged building; the dragging of the captured bandits and the girl through the crowd and their departure for hospital and police station, are dramatic in the extreme, while the accompanying explanatory talk of The Globe Trotter points out as great a moral lesson as was ever preached.

From Berlin come pictures of the great May Day demonstration held by the three factions, the Social Democrats, the Communists and the Hitlerites, who gathered 50,000 strong in the Lustgarten directly before the great Schloss of the former Kaiser.

In Hughes Film

Spencer Tracy has been borrowed from Fox for the leading role in "Ground Hogs," tentative title of the aviation comedy to be made next by Howard Hughes for United Artists. Edward Sedgwick wrote the story and will direct. Continuity and dialogue are by Robert Benchley, Ebba Havez and Carroll and Garrett Graham.

Jetta Goudal Makes Her Talkie Debut in Will Rogers' Next Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, May 14—The exotic, much publicized Jetta Goudal is to make her first talkie for the Fox Company. Jetta, who retired from the screen when she married Harold Grieve, interior decorator, will have one of the most important feminine roles in Will Rogers' next picture, "The Plutocrat."

It's interesting about Jetta, whose reputation for being temperamental and difficult to manage, cost her a job with Cecil De Mille. She is a fine actress and has never yet given an indifferent performance, but directors were afraid of her and so for months she hasn't made a picture.

Louella O. Parsons

I don't believe she has cared much either, because she assisted Harold in his work and did very well, too. Her marriage, I think, has helped Jetta, and I look to see her give a good performance and to forget there is such a thing as temperament in the world.

David Butler will direct and "The Plutocrat" has that famous writer, Booth Tarkington, as its author.

AMONG THE news of interest told in Hollywood is that C. C. Burr, an old-timer, is coming back to make pictures. He will produce a new series of the "Torchy Comedies," with Ray Cook in the lead. Remember, those are the stories that once starred Johnny Hines. By the way, where is Johnny Hines? I haven't heard of him or seen him for ages. Another piece of news is that June McCloy, the lady baritone, starts the first of her gold-digger series, called "June First."

WHAT A difference titles make. Now take "Nancy's Private Affair." That is the sort of title that sounds interesting and no doubt will induce many people to go into the theater. It is Mary Astor's next picture and these are her leading men, Robert Ames and Edward E. Horton.

SNAPSHOTS OF Hollywood collected at random. DOROTHY MACKAILL having a difficult time explaining her many engagements to marry. DOROTHY looking well and not caring much what anybody thinks. MARIE DRESSLER, EL BRENDEL and JACK OAKIE all at the Brown Derby but not together. POLA NEGRI appearing on the Pathe lot for her first test and being given a royal reception. Fans gathering around HELEN TWELVETREES at a preview of "A Woman of Experience." That gal is getting ahead. JOAN CRAWFORD and DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., making all plans to leave Monday for their trip abroad. JOHN BARRYMORE'S baby daughter refusing to be interviewed on her return from Alaska. CEDRIC GIBBONS and DOLORES DEL RIO, DON ALVARADO, NICK STUART and SUE CAROL, EDWARD HILLMAN and MARIAN NIXON patronizing Sam Holland's corner and eating some of the well known sauerkraut and what have you. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

FILM BEAUTY

Norma Shearer Star of Film at Bowdoin

At the Bowdoin Square beginning today and for the remainder of the week the house offers Norma Shearer in "Strangers May Kiss." Another picture is "Hot Heiress," with Ben Lyon and Ona Munson. The Silver Slipper Steppers and six other vaudeville acts round out the bill. Tomorrow extra vaudeville is added for "Bargain Night."

Another Circus Coming Soon

Representatives of John Ringling, circus magnate, visited Boston yesterday to arrange details for the coming of another circus to the Hub. During the recent engagement of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus at Boston Garden, Mr. Ringling stated that if possible he would have one of his other circuses routed into this territory this season, when it could exhibit under canvas at the Sullivan Square playground. This is now a certainty and William J. Conway, big show official, announced that one of the largest of the Ringling-owned tented organizations would pitch its tent in Charlestown to exhibit there during the week of June 1.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help to bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

20,000,000TH FORD ARRIVES IN BOSTON

The 20,000,000th Ford car, now on a country-wide tour, during which it will visit every state in the Union and travel about 15,000 miles, arrived in Boston yesterday shortly after noon. It was driven to the Beacon st. entrance to the State House, where it and C. A. Erslinger, Ford branch manager and members of the staff were officially welcomed by Governor Ely and members of his council.

Following an inspection of the car, during which he sat in the driver's seat, Governor Ely inscribed his name in the log of "The Twenty Millionth Ford," which already contains the signature of hundreds of dignitaries in other states already visited by the car.

Assembled in the presence of Henry and Edsel Ford the 20,000,000th Ford left the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant in Dearborn, Mich., on April 14. When it completes its tour it is to be preserved with other famous automobiles in Greenfield Village, near Dearborn, Henry Ford's reproduction of an early American Village.

HOOD PERFECTS NEW ICE CREAM

Quick freezing, which has wrought marvels the past year or two in preserving the natural flavor and texture of several staple food products, has now been applied to the manufacture of ice cream, with pleasing results in the improvement of quality, according to an announcement by H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., who are the New England pioneers in the new process and are, on Saturday, placing the first quick-frozen ice cream package on this market.

Increased smoothness and richness, together with an accentuation of flavor and a more delicious taste are the qualities which the new process of freezing is said to impart to the product.

Quick freezing, as practiced by the Hood Company, is accomplished at the expense of sensationally low temperatures. At a demonstration yesterday afternoon, the ice cream was subjected to a temperature of 58 below zero, Fahrenheit, for 45 minutes, which froze it harder than it would have been frozen in 24 to 36 hours under the old, slow freezing or "hardening" process at a temperature of 10 to 12 degrees below zero. When the ice cream emerged, it was ready for the market without further refrigeration, in about 3 per cent of the time usually required.

About people you know in Boston stores

By FRANCES BAIRD

Hundreds of women employes of Filene's are campaigning at every opportunity today since Miss Mabel Wessman, head of the Personal Service bureau, announced that she is a candidate for the presidency of the Woman's Club of that store. Miss Ruth Moulton, supervisor of the toilet goods section, is the present head of the organization, and is popular with the members. She has been urged to run again for the office. Miss Wessman served as president of the club four years ago.

MISS FRIEDMAN PROMOTED

Miss Ida Friedman, former assistant buyer of underwear for the street floor section at Gilchrist's, has been promoted to buyer for both that department and the upstairs underwear section.

VOTES BEING COUNTED

Votes in one of the liveliest store association campaigns in years are being counted at Hovey's today, following the all-day balloting throughout the store yesterday. The keenest contest was between Frank Belcher, service superintendent, who has been president of the Hovey Associates for the past eight years, and John Roche, display manager, for the presidency of the organization.

Another close contest was between Miss Marion L. Gordon, store manager, and Miss Katherine Hennessey sportswear buyer, for vice-president. The election returns will be announced tomorrow.

HANRAHAN IS HOST

More than 150 floor covering salesmen from Boston stores were the guests of President John Hanrahan and his brother, Edwin Hanrahan, of the Albany Carpet Cleaning Co. at an annual gathering at the firm's plant on Tuesday evening. The guests were entertained with motion pictures and were shown through the modern fireproof plant.

MAKE-BELIEVE

By FAITH BALDWIN

Margaret Sees Real Delight

By FAITH BALDWIN

THERE WAS a good comedian at the Revue and a leading woman who was pretty and graceful and charming and who scored, obviously, a real personal triumph. There were plenty of good-looking show girls and many specialty numbers, good, bad and indifferent. But it is probable that neither Mrs. Lorrimer nor Doctor Mathews could have given a coherent description of the piece or of anyone in it, save of the small, vivacious little person billed as Diana Hackett, and about whom rumors flew, from lipsticked mouth to lipsticked mouth, in the lobby, between acts, while tuxedoed gentlemen listened skeptically and critics smiled wearily.

"This Hackett woman . . . rather good looking, isn't she? They say her father's an Earl or something."

"Well, decent of her not to use the title, anyway!"

"Sweet are the uses of publicity!"

But she was only a very small part of the evening to the majority of the audience, and the entire evening to Margaret Lorrimer and her old friend.

Diana—the real Delight—was attractive behind the footlights. The tired lines, the hard moulding of her face, disappeared in the flattering glow; make-up concealed a great deal. She was, however, no actress. Still, she sang passably; she wore clothes—what there was of them—gracefully, and with authentic chic, and she did something she called dancing, well enough. She had personality, a gay friendliness toward her audience. And she worked hard. She had to work hard, poor creature, for this was her big chance, unexpectedly arrived at and seized with God knew what hope and relief, to stage a real "come back," to make something of herself, to eat three meals a day for an indefinite time.

After the first act Mrs. Lorrimer spoke, very low, to Mathews. She had been tense as fine strung wire at the first appearance of the woman she had come to see and to judge. Now she relaxed a little.

"She's pretty—I can see the resemblance to—"

"Yes," he interrupted, "of course you can. So can I."

Mrs. Lorrimer was silent for a minute. Then she said

"Dan, I don't know what to do!"

"And that is?" she questioned.

He twisted his program in his hands.

"I can't presume to advise you," he replied, quietly. "You'll have to work this out for yourself. Take your time, think it over. You'll be sick and sorry all the rest of your life if you commit an injustice. But it is up to you, Margaret. Whatever you do I'll stand by," he assured her, needlessly.

She smiled at him gratefully.

"Of course," she answered, "I know you will. But—Oh, I wanted to see her for myself. And now I have seen her, I know I can't judge her by just this business of sitting in an audience. Yet intuition is a strange thing, Dan. I'm perfectly convinced, sitting here, that—that he'd never be happy with her."

Mathews said, after a pause:

"You can't think of that now. You must find out how much of a claim she has on him. After all—if she is his wife—?

The lights were lowered. The curtain went up, and the play went on. Margaret watched it unseeingly save for those brief periods when the woman billed as Diana Hackett was on the stage. Then the brown eyes were keen and the slim, fine body tense.

When, very late, they were motoring home:

"Have you made up your mind?" Mathews asked her.

"Not yet," he said with a sigh that was half a sob. But she had lied to him for the first time in her life. She had made up her mind.

Peter let them in, and told them that Mr. Travers and Miss Delight had not yet returned

"I won't stay," Mathews told her. "You're dead tired. Sleep on it, Margaret, and do," he said again, "what you know will be right."

He touched her hand and went back to the waiting car which would take him home, settling back in the corner, relaxed, a troubled and lonely man, feeling his age and his inadequacy to help the one person he loved above anything on earth, in this emergency.

Margaret Lorrimer went up to bed, dismissed her waiting maid undressed and lay between cool sheets in the spring darkness, thinking, planing.

She was a mother. She was, therefore, where her son's vital happiness was concerned, an entirely unscrupulous woman. She would sacrifice anything and anybody to Travers Lorrimer's health and wealfare.

Vitamins of Great Value

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

TWENTY YEARS ago Professor Pekelharing stated that milk contained a substance of vital importance to health. It was his belief that this substance was the most essential element of milk. This report was the beginning of a long series of studies that have resulted in our present-day understanding of the vitamins.

Dr. Copeland

The study of vitamins has developed a science independent of what we commonly include in medicine. As a result of the work carried on in the past twenty years, there has grown up what we may call the "Science of Nutrition."

In the early stages of this work only three vitamins were isolated. These were spoken of as vitamins "A," "B," "C." Subsequent research discovered two more described as vitamins "D" and "G."

Of all the vitamins, vitamin B has aroused the most discussion. This vitamin is of great importance as a curative agent in the disease known as "beri-beri."

Vitamin B has certain growth-promoting qualities. It has recently been shown to be definitely related to the prevention of "pellagra." Beri-beri and pellegra are described as "deficiency diseases," that is, defects due to the lack of certain nutritional or food elements.

Vitamin B is only slightly destroyed when cooked. This vitamin is remarkably resistant to acids. Even the ultra-violet ray does not harm it. It is interesting to note that it resists the effects of time. Indian lentils and seeds kept for thirty-eight years were found to contain appreciable quantities of this vitamin.

On another occasion I shall speak of other vitamins. Today it is enough to say that vitamins are essential to the walfare of the children as well as of the adults.

What's in Fashion Today

By AMOS PARISH.

NEW YORK, May 14—Lots of new homes are going to be started next month—the month of weddings. Many of the things that go into these new homes are going to stay there a long time. And such things have to be chosen with an eye to livability.

Silver is one of these things. It's used as long as anything in the home. So the bride wants a pattern that "wears well"—that she won't get tired of.

And there's plenty of silverware that is pleasant to live with for a long time. Modern patterns and period patterns. Some light looking—and some more massive.

Period designs are especially nice if the dining room is furnished with period furniture. But one way in which many brides "go modern"—even if the rest of the home is filled with genuine antiques—is in silver.

Simple Modern Designs

These new modern designs are simple enough to go into any home and be in good taste and in harmony with the rest of the furnishings.

We've had four modern patterns illustrated (at the top). Two are sterling silver and two are plated. And don't think it isn't fashionable to have plated silver. It is! You'll find it in thousands of fashionable homes.

Incidentally—do you know the difference between sterling silver and silver plate? The mark "sterling" indicates that the piece contains 925 parts pure silver and 75 parts other metals. These other metals give the piece the necessary hardness and durability.

In plated silver the outside surface is pure silver. The inside is composed of other metals.

But, as you can see in the sketch of the four modern pieces and in the other sketches, too, the plated designs are just as smart and interesting as the sterling.

Period Patterns

Early American and Georgian designs are much in fashion, especially in dining rooms furnished in reproductions of the furniture of these periods.

Two early American designs in sterling, one in plate and one Georgian in plate, are illustrated in the center group.

These are all representative of fashionable lighter-looking patterns. The bride who wants something more substantial looking is just as much in fashion.

In starting her silver chest, every bride wants as much as her means allow, of course. Service for four is just about the minimum requirement. Service for six is the usual amount. Service for eight adds a bit of luxury and a lot of convenience

How to 'Nourish' Away Marring Wrinkles

By MISS HUDDLESTON.

IN A recent article, I promised to discuss the various ways of eliminating wrinkles which form in the face, marring the expression and destroying the youthful countenance we all hope to retain.

Josephine Huddleston

The study of these lines is extremely interesting, for there are so many reasons why the face becomes lined and wrinkled. Frequently we see women with clear, sparkling complexions, denoting the best of health and care, and still the skin is wrinkled. Usually in such cases, these lines are found around the eyes and mouth, the two main expression centers of the face.

When this condition is found in older women it usually denotes character lines and, to the person who is wise in facial lore, they tell the story of that woman's life as clearly as the average person would read the printed page.

It is true that these lines can be softened so that they do not become deep enough to suggest a greater age than the actual years count. In fact, they can be subdued sufficiently to cut years from one's appearance and still the value of the character lines need not be lessened.

All this is accomplished by the simple expedient of using nourishing creams in the proper way. As we grow older the natural oils in the body become somewhat depleted and this in itself develops lines. Consequently, all of us should use nourishing creams even in our earlier years so that we may counteract the effect of the diminished supply of oils in the body.

Lines around the eyes are softened by applying a generous amount of nourishing cream after the skin has been thoroughly cleansed. The cream should be massaged into the skin by the following method.

Place the tips of the fingers on the eyelid, near the bridge of the nose, and then draw them lightly out to the ends of the eyes and back under the eyes toward the nose. Circle each eye in this manner fifty times.

For the lines that gradually form from the wings of the nostrils down to the corners of the mouth, the cream should be applied and the fingers drawn across the line, beginning at the corners of the mouth and working up to the wings of the nostrils. Just whip the tips of the fingers lightly across the line, moving them out and slightly up toward the ears. Lift the fingers from the cheek as soon as you've crossed the line, place them back toward the center of the face and work them across the line again. Never work back over the line or you'll counteract the good that comes from such treatment.

To reap the reward from this "nourishing" process the formula must be followed faithfully—one must not expect to work miracles in a few days. But, as surely as the wrinkles are there, you will find them gradually diminishing in prominence as the treatment progresses.

Seating Guest of Honor

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Our club is to give an informal luncheon at which there will be a guest of honor. Should the hostess sit at the head of the table? In relation to her, where should the guest of honor be seated?

2. Would paper napkins in the club colors be all right for the luncheon napkins? It seems to me that this would be a bit too informal. What is your opinion?

3. When is it permissible to wear wrist length white "kid" gloves of washable suede? Are they all right with any color street costume? CORA.

1. Yes, the hostess should sit at the head of the table, and on her right would be the guest of honor.

2. I agree with you. Paper napkins would not be at all appropriate for this occasion.

3. Yes, gloves of this description are appropriate for street costume.

In England They Do It Differently

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When is it correct to use "Dear" in the heading of a letter and when is "My dear" used? Which is considered more formal?

ONE OF YOUR FAITHFUL FOLLOWERS.

Although it has always seemed to be rather inconsistent, in this country it is considered that "My dear" is more formal than "Dear." The reverse holds true in England.

Wearing the Class Ring

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My friend and I have had a little discussion as to whether or not it is correct to wear a class ring to an informal evening dance when one dresses informally? We have agreed to follow your advice. PEARL.

It is correct to wear your class ring, since you are dressing informally.

Miss Fairfax Says 'Give Up Gang'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have been in love with a girl for the past three years, although we never kept "steady" company but a couple of months during that time. I thought it better to wait until we were older before signing up. During the time we went regularly together I stopped going with the "gang" that drank. This pleased her, as she detests drinking. I didn't realize I cared for her until I saw her going with others. I hear now that she keeps "steady" company with another boy and she refuses even to answer my letters. Now I have gone back to my old way of going with the "gang," but would be willing to give them up if I could win her back. BILL.

Dear Bill—I'm afraid you're not a very strong charactir, or you would not have gone over to the "gang" as soon as you stopped going with that very nice girl. Give up these associates and see what that does for your chances.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have been going with a boy for nearly a year and he has told me more than once that he loves me. But at times he gets very mean and nasty, though later he is always willing to ask for forgiveness. About a month ago he left the city without telling me he was going, and never wrote me a line during his absence. He came back, and the following evening he visited me, and has been coming to see me every evening since. He lost his job while he was away, and he is having a hard time getting work.

DOUBTFUL.

Dear Doubtful: Aversity seems to have improved this friend of yours and probably by the time he has succeeded in finding a job you will have no doubts about restoring him to favor.

What Fun to Have 100 Millions!

By WINIFRED BLACK.

ONE hundred million dollars!

Whew, doesn't it make you gasp—$100,000,000!

Winifred Black

Travel, books, music, pictures, thousands of friends, all kinds of friends, rich and poor, old and young—furs, four or five coats, all different, and jackets and wraps. And long, slinky evening frocks, with trains, and soft clinging day dresses.

But the friends would be the best of all, oh, much the best of all.

All the little pale and tired mothers and their pale, delicate children—wouldn't it be fun to have a yacht and take them all for a lovely visit to the South Seas and have the ship full of balls and bats, and tennis nets and tennis racquets, and go ashore and let them all swim and run, and ride ponies and chase each other up and down the beach.

And the tired women who are sick of living, sick of the same old routine, over and over; sick of being poor and lonely and never noticed.

Wouldn't it be glorious to give one of them money enough to take a year's vacation, a whole year, without a care, and without a worry?

A woman died the other day; she was seventy-eight years old and nobody in the block where she lived had ever heard her name, or even seen her to know who she was.

And she left behind her $100,000,000.

She had never married.

I wonder if she wouldn't have given every dollar she had for a real husband, and a real family of children, and a real home and some plain, everyday love and kindness—and quarrels and makings up.

Poor soul, she wasn't rich, really, was she, even if she did have $100,000,000?

New Ways to Cook Figs

By MARTHA LEE.

TIME WAS when figs were a luxury that only made their appearance at Thanksgiving and Christmas, but now our own California supplies us with this delicious fruit confection reasonably all the year round. And many are the ways in which figs can be used in our menu making.

Martha Lee

FIG TAPIOCA

¼ cup quick-cooking tapioca
1 pt. syrup from stewed figs
⅛ tsp. salt
3 tbsps. sugar
¼ tsp. orange extract
1 cup figs drained from juice

Cook tapioca and salt in fig syrup in double boiler 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add sugar and orange extract. Place drained figs in bottom of buttered baking pan. Pour tapioca mixture over them and cook ½ hour in moderate oven, 350 deg. F. Serve hot with sweetened and flavored whipped cream or top milk.

Faithfully yours,

SUGAR MAKES PROFIT, CALLS ITS BONDS

By FRANK H. MELOON

American Sugar Refining Co. is making a profit despite low prices and is calling its bonds to the extent of $2,500,000. The bonds to be redeemed July 1 are part of the company's $30,000,000 issue of 4 per cent gold bonds due in 1937. The call price is 102½.

Earl D. Babst

The sugar refining industry is experiencing a somewhat reduced volume, and is operating on a close margin of profit," states Chairman Babst. "The price of fined sugar is extremely low. A good general fruit crop is expected to stimulate sugar distribution in the canning season. Invisible supplies in the hands of the trade are low."

A leading advisory service is putting out a long analysis of Trico Products as one of the motor accessory shares showing better earnings that it did a year ago. Trico has added to its lines with a new glass for windshield and a new vacuum horn, well received in the motor trade. This company has followed the axiom that you can't catch up with potential business by standing still. It is expected to earn its full 1931 dividend requirements in the first half of this year

Automotive official is quoted as saying he believes the May output for his division will be less than that of April. This is by no means discouraging, as the peak of automotive production was reached in April last year, while this year it is expected to be attained some time during the current month. After all, it is not the monthly output that "tells" in the annual report, but the figures for the year as a whole

It is rather early to attempt accurate estimates of what 1931 as a whole will show in the automotive industry. One thing is sure, and that is that this industry will be in the forefront of those making the best showings. That much is already assured. The relative position of some companies will be changed. And, as happens annually some of the "weak sisters" will pass out of the picture, leaving just so much more of the field to the strong.

With the drab Argentine portrait now being painted in the bond market, it is interesting to note that "good reception" was accorded some rather expensive British models shown at an exhibition there lately. Rolls-Royces appeared at $22,000 along with $17,000 12-cylinder Daimlers, the kind in which the British King rides

According to advices received at the Boston office of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, American automobile models are still preferred in the Argentine.

Mr. Kelly is well known in Boston where he has been for a number of years as district manager for R. G. Dun & Co. and previous to that in the same capacity at Toronto, Ontario. Mr. Kelly is an outstanding figure in the field and in his new capacity with Bradstreet's will have a far wider scope

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Railroad shares were again the leading downside performers in today's Wall Street dealings. Losses were registered in "slow motion" trading

Steel Is Pounded to a Fresh Low

The bears took up the hammer again today and pounded United States Steel under 107 for a new low record, thus continuing the almost daily performance of the market's big leader. They were not as successful with American Can.

Locomotive Lower on Dividend Cut

Reduction in American Locomotive's dividend today, in line with forecasts in this column, had been anticipated and the stock moved only a little lower in its immediate response to halving of the payment

Woolworth Meets Some Profit-Taking

After setting repeated new highs, Woolworth today met some profit-taking. The directors decided to offer the stock of Woolworth Limited publicly, and it now seems apparent that the stockholders of Woolworth are to receive a special distribution of bonus stock or valuable rights in this connection. This is the only important company in which special distribution seems imminent in 1931, and even though it may be forced to absorb profit-taking in the course of the next few days now that the good news is partly out there is real confidence in this company over the balance of the year

Starrett Higher After Report

Starrett Corporation gained over a point today after issuance of its report. The Starrett Corporation and wholly owned subsidiaries, excluding the Starrett Ohio Corporation, reported for the quarter ended March 31 a balance after preferred dividends of $242,560, equal to an annual rate of more than $2.50 a share on the outstanding common stock. As the company has changed its fiscal year from the period ended March 31 to conform to the calendar year direct comparison is unavailable.

Nickel's Dividend Over Half Earned

Unfinished Work Shows Increase

Starrett's unfinished business as of April 30 was reported as $27,113,940, an increase of $2,436,376 over the $24,657,572 March 31. The April 30 total included only about $2,000,000 of the Empire State Building project in New York city

Sinclair Session Is Indefinite

Sinclair directors meeting at which dividend omission was feared has been indefinitely postponed for lack of a quorum.

American Can Estimates Made

Some of those who talked $8 a share for Can earlier in this year have revised their estimates and now say under $6. But both estimates are quite unofficial

Int. Shoe Is Being Watched

Market students are watching International Shoe for signs of a revival of active trading interest in the stock. The company is the largest shoe producer and it is felt that the satisfactory nature of reports coming from the shoe manufacturing districts may attract attention to the issue. The company is in a strong financial position and around recent levels the yield has been in excess of 6 per cent

Westinghouse "Net Quick"

A substantial short interest exists in Westinghouse Electric, despite active covering at times in the past three days. Part of the demand from the shorts was due to the fact that a commission house has been calling attention to the net working capital at the end of 1930, which amounted to $38.75 a common share. In addition, it is figured out that the equity of the company's holdings of Radio, if appraised at $21 a share, would amount to $23.10 for each share of Westinghouse. This is a total of $61.85 a share which is about where the stock has been selling recently.

General Electric Net Below 40c. in Quarter

Earnings of General Electric are not expected to cover the 40 cent dividend requirements during the current quarter. Net income of the company during the first three months of the year were equal to 38 cents a share and interests conversant with the affairs of the company estimate during the present quarter at slightly below that figure

Long-Term Outlook for Katy Shares

Some speculative buying has developed for Missouri Kansas Texas shares, but only for the long pull.

NICKEL EARNS $1,659,637 IN QUARTER

International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., reports today for quarter ended March 31 a net income of $1,659,637 after all charges and taxes, which compares with a net profit of $4,616,144 for the corresponding three months of 1930.

Net for the quarter is equal, after allowing for preferred dividends, to 5 cents a share on 14,584,065 shares of no-par common stock, compared with 30 cents a share in the same period of last year

Gross income for the period amounted to $3,254,391, against $6,916,939 for the same period a year ago, while net operating income for the three months was $2,733,976, against $5,886,710 a year ago.

Balance sheet as of March 31, 1931, shows current assets of $35,586,808 against current liabilities of $6,266,126, leaving net working capital of $29,320,682, which compares with current assets of $37,245,882, current liabilities of $7,142,883, and net working capital of $30,102,999 a year previous. Cash amounted to $7,572,098, compared with $9,284,367 on March 31, 1930

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State St thinks that while there is some liquidation, such as the reported selling of the rails by British interests, the market is largely subject to the influence of bearish professionals. They point out a mixed trend through most sessions that only assumes a definitely heavy tone in the last half-hour which suggests bear operations.

Those who like to use fire insurance buying as a guide for their own investment program note these companies are swinging away from the bond and preferred stock policy of the past two years. Most recent figures show 53 per cent of their purchases were common stocks

One market letter writer, commenting on the weakness of the rails, expresses the belief that there cannot be any rally in the general list until this important division firms and shows signs of nearing a bottom. He thinks a likely bottom will be around 80 on the Dow Jones index of 20 rails

Boston brokers who have suggested commitments in General Motors admit the possibility of a sharp drive on this equity by interests allied with a prominent bear, said to have sold stock at lower levels. They advise accumulation on setbacks because they think the short interest, already large, will become unwieldy.

* * *

Rumors, that Canadian Pacific will restore the old dividend rate, are a bit too optimistic in the opinion of many competent observers in the financial district. Dispatches received by local brokers indicate restoration of the old rate is largely dependant on better conditions for wheat

'L' ISSUES ARE AT NEW HIGHS IN BOSTON

Boston Elevated shares jumped into new high territory in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. The passing of the bill in the House of Representatives, allowing for 28 years of the public control of the "L," had a favorable effect on the stock.

The common advanced nearly 7 points, while the first and second preferred each gained around 4 points.

Hygrade Lamp slumped 5 points. Atchison lowered nearly 2 and American Telephone was a point lower. United Shoe added a fraction

Minor losses were shown for New England Telephone, New Haven and United Fruit

In the over-the-counter market Greenfield Tap & Die 8 per cent preferred is quoted 25@30, against 35@42 a week ago. The last public sale at auction was at 55 on March 18. This was prior to the passing of the dividend

Brown Co. preferred sold at 30 off 2, equalling the record low. Bigelow-Sanford Carpet common at 24 also equalled the all time low

Walworth Dividend May Be Omitted

Walworth Co. directors meet Friday to consider dividends. In view of the character of operations during the first quarter, it seems likely that the dividend on the junior shares will be omitted, says the Boston News Bureau. In the previous quarter the stock was placed on a $1 annual basis, against a $2 rate in effect since December, 1929, prior to which a $1.20 annual basis was in force.

STOCKS WEAK IN SPOTS IN LAST HOUR

New York, May 14—The stock market today again developed marked weakness in spots during last hour trading, after a feeble afternoon rally.

Trading was only moderately active, and the decline appeared to reflect a combination of real liquidation and bear attacks.

LONDON SELLING.

Brokerage house gossip had it that considerable liquidation was for London account. In London the cut in the Bank of England's discount rate from 3 to 2½ per cent appeared to be overshadowed by less favorable developments.

The relative importance of bear selling in the local market could not be determined, but it has become a favorite bear tactic to give the market a push in the late dealings.

U. S. Steel and the rail issues were weak features. Issues losing 3 to 5 points included U. S. Steel, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Union Pacific, Atchison, New Haven, Rock Island, Southern Railway and Katy preferred. Missouri Pacific preferred dropped more than 6.

Issues losing a point or two included Radio, American Telephone and Standard of New Jersey.

The last named was sold in expectation of its annual statement. Much of the industrial and utility groups held up well, however.

AUBURN OFF 30

Such issues as American Can, General Electric and General Motors sagged only fractionally. Auburn tumbled more than 30. The turnover was 1,800,000 shares.

Cut in the Bank of England rate followed the lower rate at New York more quickly than generally expected, in view of the recent reaction in sterling exchange. The higher rate, however, had become largely artificial, in view of the reductions in bankers' acceptance rates.

Despite the recent sag in sterling, London evidently feels that it can continue to take the bulk of South American gold offerings. The weekly Bank of England statement showed another gain of more than $7,000,000 in gold holdings.

The London market's unenthusiastic reception of the rate cut appeared to be due primarily to the adverse final dividends declared by Shell and Royal Dutch, which carried oils generally lower, and the description of the country's commercial condition as "highly critical" by the chairman of Lloyd's Bank.

Time money continued to decline, six-month funds being reported offered as low as 1½ per cent.

Railroad Shares Corp. Shows Gain

Railroad Shares Corp. reports for period from July 3, 1929, to April 31, 1931, net gain of $683,758 after federal taxes and expenses. Surplus and reserves on April 21 were $144,788 after payment of the March 16 dividend amounting to $104,601.

Holders to Vote on Capital Reduction

Capital Administration Co., Ltd., has called a special stockholders' meeting for June 6, for the purpose of voting upon a proposal of the directors to reduce the stated value of the outstanding Class A stock from approximately $20 to $1 per share, or from $2,778,850 to $143,405 on the 143,405 shares of this class of stock outstanding, Melvin E. Sawin, president of the corporation, announced.

Ritter Dental Mfg. Net 19 Cents Share

Ritter Dental Manufacturing Co. for the quarter ended March 31 reports a net profit of $74,336 after taxes, interest, depreciation, etc., equal after preferred dividend requirements to 19 cents a share on 160,000 shares of common.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

DIVIDEND REDUCED

J. P., Newton—A friend told me to pick up a few shares American Car & Foundry. What do you think of it?

Ans.—American Car & Foundry common stock would not appeal to a conservative person. In recent years dividends have been paid partly from reserves because of unsatisfactory earnings. With quarterly payment of 75 cents a share April 1 the annual dividend rate will be $3 a share, contrasted with the record $6 rate paid from March, 1925. For fiscal year ended April 30, 1930, net income amounted to $5.44 a share, against $1.03 in 1929 and $2.76 in 1928. Earnings for six months ended October 31, 1930, were $1.35 a share, contrasted with $2.40 for similar period of preceding year.

BUY BONDS

D. M., Watertown—Your column appeals to me. Leaving enough aside for emergencies, I have $4000 for investment. I am middle-aged and must use discretion.

Ans.—You will find a high degree of protection in guaranteed first mortgage bonds. Investing the sum of $2000 in Title Guarantee & Trust 5s and a similar amount in Lawyers' Title & Guaranty 5½s would give you an annual income of $210.

KEEP A RESERVE

J. L., Brookline—What shall I buy with $15,000 now in saving banks? I am a business man, well on in years, and have hitherto relied solely on the advice of a Boston broker. I enclose a list of my past acquisitions.

Ans.—Keep what you have. Then study this plan that will leave something for the savings bank: $2000 each National Mortgage 5½s, Steneck Trust 5½s and Lawyers' Title & Guaranty 5½; add 10 shares each Bangor & Aroostook preferred, Bethlehem Steel preferred, Bush Terminal Buildings preferred, Standard Gas & Elctric $6 preferred and Kansas Gas & Electric $7 preferred. The total cost is $11,400. This plan leaves a generous amount for the savings bank.

LOOK INSECURE

A. V., Boston—What shall I do with 30 shares Southern Railway bought higher? Do you look for any improvement?

Ans.—We could not guess future market prices, if that is what you mean. Southern Railway is selling on a basis to yield more than 20 per cent which, obviously, indicates insecurity of current $8 dividend, paid from February, 1928. Last year's business was unsatisfactory and net income declined to $4.72 a share, against $11.65 in 1929. Net operating income for first two months of current year amounted to $762,730, compared with $2,341,442 in similar period of 1930.

NO DIVIDENDS

H. Y., Brighton—What do you think of a purchase of Diamond Match for a business man? Do you know anything about earnings for current year?

Ans.—It is too early to judge volume of business for 1931, but in 1930 Diamond Match earned $1.10 a share. The dividend record of the old company is impressive, dating back to 1889. No dividend policy has been announced for the present common stock, issued under plan of December 8, 1930, for reincorporation and recapitalization. It is believed an initial payment will be distributed around September 1. The stock is a speculation. We advise only on investment.

HIGH YIELD

J. P., Cambridge—What do you think of Lambert for investment? Why is it selling so low despite the fact that 1930 earnings approximated 1929?

Ans.—The decline in Lambert Company may be a reflection of possible lower earnings for the current year. Net for 1930, including earnings of Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush acquired early in 1930, were $9.52 a share, against $10.04 a share in 1929. Dividends, with extras, have been paid from July, 1926; current $8 rate from April, 1929. The yield now is close to 10 per cent, which makes the stock look speculative.

WANTS FORECAST

G. S., Quincy—I have a large amount of Warner Brothers common at 70. Do you look for any recovery?

Ans.—Whether Warner Brothers common will advance or decline is anybody's guess. Usually, the market position of a stock is influenced by earnings. For first quarter of current fiscal year ended November 30, 1930, net income was equivalent to 39 cents a share, against $2.07 for similar preceding quarter. For fiscal year ended August 30, 1930, earnings were $2.21 a share, contrasted with $6.33 in 1929. An initial quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share was paid September 1929, increased to $1 quarterly December, 1929. Quarterly payment expected September 2, 1930, was omitted. The stock is a speculation.

SMITH AND CHURIO TIE IN SOUTHPORT TOURNEY

FANNING

—By GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

Watch Out, Tonight.
Sonny vs. Zarynoff.

Fights Tomorrow.
Look for Thriller.

MAN-SIZED POLTHOGUES WILL FILL AIR

Ring for the ambulance! Call the cops!
  Gus tackles the Count once more!
Pad the canvas, strengthen props—
  There'll be jolts and jars galore!
Women and children, stand clear the ropes!
  Strong men, say your prayers—
When Zarynoff with Sonny copes,
  They're gentle as grizzly bears!

SONNENBERG VS. ZARYNOFF—clear the tracks and give 'em room! Papa, Papa, put me right up at the matside. When Dynamite Gus and the Count come to a clinch it has a family row backed off the boards. They try to take each other apart to see what each is made of. There is action behind each grunt, a thrill behind each groan. They get the spectators so roaring excited you would think it was feeding time at the zoo. No place for a fan with a weak heart at the matside when Dynamite Gus and the Terrible Cossack get to necking. So weak hearted fans and fannies avoid the Arena tonight.

DYNAMITE GUS

Fourth meeting between the two great gladiators of the grunt and groan. First time up in Worcester, Zarynoff, trying to evade one of the ex-Dartmouth stars celebrated flying tackles, whirled in a back somersault and came down across the mat posts, opening a jagged wound in his arm, the scar of which he carries to this day. When the wound healed the pair met again in the Boston Garden. And what a heluva time Grunting Gus, the Great Untamed, had before he succeeded in pinning the Terror of the Russian Steppes to the upholstery. They went to a knock down and drag out draw in New York recently. If their grapple in Gotham can be taken as a criterion, the soiree tonight should be the greatest shindy since Myles the Slasher slew the Sassenach at the Bridge of Finea. Bedad, that was a jamboree that would warm the cockles of your heart!

There should be just as soul stirring a shindy when Larruping Lou Brouillard the guy that is making Worcester famous, starts tossing fullgrown polthogues at Al Mello, the Pummeling Portugee, and Annihilating Al tosses the fully matured pokes right back. The very air in the Garden tomorrow night will be full of man-sized punches. If those two wallopers don't hammer the life back into the Sick Man of Sport, we don't know who will.

A RING southpaw is no rarity. But it is out of the ordinary when one southpaw climbs into one corner and another southpaw faces him in the opposite corner of the same ring, as will happen when Lou and Al crawl through the ropes tomorrow night. We've had some great southpaws. But you seldom see two portsiders in the same ring at the same time.

Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, was a southpaw. The best southpaw we ever saw, however, was Lew Tendler of Philadelphia. Lefty Lew never was champion, but he was better than most champions. He was unfortunate enough to come at the same time as the great Benny Leonard. Leonard would have knocked Mandell, Singer and Canzoneri, who followed Leonard from in under their hats. Lew had the great Leonard tottering on the verge of a knockout but Benny talked him out of it.

AL MELLO

A terrific left to the body and another southside slam had Leonard on Queer Street. But Benny's brains were not addled. He inveigled Tendler into an exchange of repartee. While Lew was talking he forgot to punch. In the meantime Benny came back. In the second Leonard-Tendler fight Lou was annihilated. Benny blocked Lew's vicious lefts to the body with his elbow and uppercut at the same time, almost ripping Tendler's head from his shoulders.

Lou Brouillard may develop into a greater southpaw than Tendler and may climb into a championship throne like Southpaw Johnny Wilson. Class sticks out all over the Worcester youngster. But they shouldn't rush him along too fast. He still is unseasoned and inexperienced. It is Mello's experience and ring generalship Lou will have to overcome in the Garden tomorrow night. Ring generalship is a combination of brains, coolness, courage and experience, with the accent on experience.

By the time some boxers acquire ring generalship it is too late. Experience is something like ivy. It often grows around ruins.

FRED HOEY

GLAD TO SEE Fred Hoey is appreciated at Braves Field . . . Betcha that Fred Hoey Day on June 20 will be a near sellout . . . Dick Flynn, former Lynn English 1000-yard star, has gone to join Clarence De Mar at Keene, N. H. . . . Richard P. has taken the job of executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce there . . . Jack Cremmen looks as if he was in training for a fat man's race . . . Better hurry up and get into your whites and strut your tennis down on the South Shore. Jack

Nate Shriber, dynamic Spaulding Bros. salesman, is off on his spring Marathon through Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont loaded down with bats, balls, gloves, racquets, skates, clubs, sticks and other sporting paraphernalia . . . Jack Kenney, red-hot fan, if there ever was one, is on here from Detroit visiting his mother . . . Major Batts of the Back Bay News Gang may sue the Braves for damages . . . The Maje strained his throat on Tuesday when Berger made that home run.

They're holding a Stripp Day in Brooklyn next Sunday, we note . . . But don't get excited . . . It's only in honor of Joe Stripp, a Jersey boy who plays on the Reds . . . George Phair has the right dope . . . When asked to pick the Derby he replied, "I pick the brown one" . . . Heh! Heh! . . . George says the Cubs are not wearing those black shirts in honor of Mussolini . . . They are in mourning for their lost batting eyes . . . Behind each cloud is a silver lining . . . The cold and the rain kept the Cardinals idle and enabled the Braves to keep their hair a little longer.

Park us in a front seat when they hold the Dog Derby on the Common. That is going to be a sport's spectacle worth watching. The kids already are beginning to groom their mutts for the big race. We'd rather have a dog with a thoroughbred heart than one with blue blood.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press.

George Earnshaw, Athletics—Held White Sox to nine hits in eleven innings to win third straight victory, 7 to 5.

Lou Gehrig, Yankees—Doubled in eighth inning, bringing in Reese with run that beat Browns, 3 to 2.

DIAMOND DUST

By JOE CASHMAN

Wilcy Moore and Waite Hoyt are the likely starting pitchers in the third and final game between the Red Sox and Tigers in Detroit this afternoon.

Tomorrow, the Sox will move into Chicago for a four-game series with the White Sox which should settle the ownership of sixth place for a while.

Detroit isn't rated as strong as Cleveland but the Sox have found the Tigers far more formidable than the Indians. The Fenway flock didn't lose a game in the Forest City and they have yet to win one in Tiger Town.

Weak hitting caused both of their defeats. They could not make a run for Jack Rusell, who allowed only two tallies, in the first game and they could make only one for Milt Gaston, who gave but two markers in the second contest.

The showing of the Sox pitchers in the West has been most pleasing. In five games they have allowed the opposition only 13 runs, or less than three a game.

For the second time in as many starts, Wes Ferrell, Cleveland mound ace, was knocked out of the box yesterday. Washington turned the trick this time and the Indians suffered their fifth straight defeat, 9 to 3. The loss dropped them down to fifth place. Less than a week ago, they were on top.

Seven of the eight National League games scheduled for the past two days had to be postponed because of cold or rainy weather. All senior circuit clubs were forced to remain idle yesterday while only the Braves and Reds played on Tuesday.

The White Sox went into the eighth inning of their game with the Athletics yesterday with a 5 to 3 lead and high hopes of breaking the sixth-place tie with the Red Sox. In the eighth, though, Mickey Cochrane hit a home run. In the ninth Bing Miller duplicated the stunt to tie the count and in the eleventh the Mackmen won out, 7 to 5.

Boston Evening American Baseball Album

WILCY WILLIAM MOORE.

Red Sox pitcher.

Born, Bonita, Texas, May 20, 1897.

Height, 6 feet.

He was almost 25 years old before he entered pro baseball and pitched in the minors for six years before he attracted attention and was purchased by the New York Yankees in 1927.

He was a sensation with the New Yorkers that year, finishing up more than 50 games and saving the majority of them to enable the club to win the pennant by a margin of 19 games.

His efforts told on him, however, and a sore arm kept him on the bench in '28 and '29, and he was then sent back to St. Paul in the American Association.

He regained his old form with the Saints last season, winning 22 and losing but nine games to lead the A. A. pitchers and the Red Sox beat several other big league clubs to get him in the draft.

He is the leading Fenway flinger to date this year with a record of three victories and two defeats.

Smith and Churio Tie With 146 in $7500 Pro Golf Tilt

Southport, Eng., May 14 (INS)—Horton Smith, American professional star, today went into a tie for the lead in the second round of the $7500 Dunlop Southport professional golf tournament with Marco Churio of Argentina.

Smith's 75 today gave him a total of 146 for the two rounds, the same score compiled by the Argentine professional.

Smith played steady golf today until he reached the sixteenth hole named the Grumbleys. Here the high wind that was blowing prevented him from carrying the ridge and he had to be satisfied with a six.

All scores ran higher today than for yesterday's round when it required a score in the lower 70's to stay in the running.

Henry Cotton, British professional whose 70 led the field yesterday, required a 77 today and tied for second place with Archie Compston, another Britisher, whose card was 72-75—147.

Tony Manero, American, displaced from his early position in second place, had a card of 75-75—150. Joe Kirkwood's card stood 72-80—152; Joe Turnesa, last of the American quartet, 75-79—154.

Other scores today were Syd Masterbrook, British, 79—159; Ted Ray, 78—150; Tomasco Genta, Argentine open champion, 77—150.

W. G. A. MATCHES CALLED OFF

Due to the rain, the W. G. A. team matches, which were scheduled for today, were called off. Also, the inclement weather put a damper on the Country Club Cup at Brookline and the Wellesley C. C. open.

The W. G. A. teams were to have played at South Shore, Brae Burn and Tedesco, but they postponed their matches, while only six played at the Country Club. Starters at Wellesley were conspicuous by their absence.

In taking his mother with him to England, once again Johnny Farrell, the former open champion, showed why he is so highly respected through golfdom. Do you know that the earnings of Johnny and Jimmy Farrell are divided three ways, and that ever since the boys have been in golf their mother has received an equal share of her sons' revenue?

Although the greenskeepers, without exception, all appreciate the recent rains, they are now begging for some warm weather to bring in their courses. Until last Friday, the courses were all as dry as bones and now that nature has come to their aid with some heavy rains, they need a week or two of sunshine to be right.

The three day Wellesley C. C. open handicap medal play tournament which got underway today, should attract the large field of the season. There were 212 players at Woodland but Wellesley should eclipse that mark.

The first invitation tournament of the season opens today, when a large field plays the qualifying round of The Country Club Cup. H. D. Baker, Jr., Highland, was the medalist last year with a 78 but as the field is faster this spring, it will require better golf to lead the field today.

Brad Oxnard, the former Rhode Island amateur champion, is one of the keenest students of golf in the game. Oxnard has as his objectives for this season, the regaining of the Little Rhody title, now in the possession of Tommy Tailer, and the New England amateur championship, which is resting comfortably with Elmer Ward.

While the Northern District varsity is battling to stay in the W. G. A. team match championship by defeating Eastern today, the second team will be striving to hang up its eighth consecutive victory at Tedesco.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

The trouble with many of the odds and ends of golfing practices you acquire, and which you seek to change for things seemingly better, is that habit has a way of jumping back in through the window every time you chase it out through the door. Or to define things specifically you can easily fall into the process of forever seeking to change one mechanical action for another one but with each such attempt at change you have involved a residue from your former practice, so that in the new you have an entirely strange mixture, being partly new and partly the old. Be alert for these troubles and be especially alert in any shift for the better you may determine upon with regard to the widespread and wholly wrong theory that your weight is shifted. You never make golf swings by thinking about what you do, or do not do, with your weight. You swing the club. Your weight as such, has nothing to do with it. What you do, do with the club; do nothing with your weight other than keep it out of your way.

SONNENBERG-ZARYNOFF MAT FRAY AT ARENA

COUNT TOUGH FOE FOR GUS TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg, most colorful figure in the wrestling game, and Count Zarynoff each declare they will leave the ring in triumph when they collide in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena tonight, under the direction of Paul Bowser

Sonnenberg has only met with one defeat in three years. That was in his first tussle at the Arena with Strangler Lewis. On that occasion Gus went hurtling through the ropes to the floor. He was removed to the hospital suffering from a concussion of the brain.

Jack Conway

The old Dartmouth hero came back to beat Lewis seven times. He also has three victories to his credit over Henri Deglane who recently upset Lewis, while he has beaten Ed George once.

The new popularity of wrestling is due to the Sonnenberg influence. His spectacular flying tackle has given the mat game punch. Other college athletes have followed him into the wrestling game, while the oldtimers in the mat world have tried to imitate his ring tactics.

Sonny is in a class by himself when it comes to executing the flying tackle. He comes up off the floor like a bullet. There is tremendous power and speed to his drive, while his aim is deadly. The nearer Gus is to the mat the more deadly is his tackle.

None of the other former college stars can tackle with the skill of Sonny. It is ridiculous to watch some of the foreign wrestlers trying to copy his stuff. I have seen some of them start the tackle from a standing position. Their slow, lumbering efforts are a contrast to the snap Sonny gets into his work.

Zarynoff Has Always Given Gus Trouble

Count Zarynoff has always been a tough nut for Sonny to crack. Their bouts here and in New York have been filled with thrills. In their most recent meeting, which was held near the blazing lights of Broadway, honors were even.

Zarynoff has grown heavier and stronger. Physically he is a match for Sonny. The Count has amazing speed, is a born acrobat and has proved that by tumbling to the canvas he has a perfect defense against the flying tackle.

The Count recently went 1h. 36m. with the powerful Ed George before the latter could get a fall. Zarynoff contends that George is a better wrestler than Sonny. He believes that if he could do so well against George that he is a sure thing to upset Sonny.

Codicil Winner of Payne Stakes Race

Newmarket, Eng., May 14 (AP)—Mrs. Glorney's Derby candidate Codicil, at odds of 8 to 1, today won the Payne Stakes at the Newmarket meeting.

J. P. Hornung's Apperley, also a Derby entry, was second. J. E. Widener's Pahokee, the only American-owned horse in the race, was unplaced.

Eight horses ran in the mile and a half race, the same distance as the Derby. The purse was $200, with extras.

Newton Picked to Beat Brookline

One of the best school dual meets of the year brings Brookline and Newton, hot rivals, together at Nickerson Field, Riverside, this afternoon.

On paper Newton appears to have the strength to win, but it will be no walk away as Brookline has its share of fleet performers.

Jack Conway Picks Sonny, Lutze and Macaluso to Win

Jack Conway picked Gus Sonnenberg to defeat Count Zarynoff, Nick Lutze to win from Leo Hyatt and Len Macaluso to beat Boris Demetroff at the Arena tonight.

"I look for a thrilling battle when Sonny and the Count breeze into action," said Jack. "The Count is fast and tricky and will give the former Dartmouth hero plenty of trouble.

Conway's 1931 record follows:

MIKE IN THE LION'S DEN

MAXIE TO GET 40 PER CENT OF GATE

Cleveland, May 14 (AP)—Examination of the contracts for the Schmeling-Stribling heavyweight bout here July 3 disclosed today that Champion Max Schmeling will receive 40 per cent of the gate receipts after deductions for expenses and taxes. The contender, W. L. (Young) Stribling will take 12½ per cent as his share.

Schmeling's 40 per cent is 2½ per cent more than the usual amount given defending champions. Under rules of the New York Madison Garden Corporation, champions get 37½ per cent.

Arthur Clulee, chairman of the commission, said Dick Dunn, promoter of the bout, will post a cash bond of $27,500 today. It will guarantee the $20,000 rental fee of the new municipal stadium, $5000 as the city's share of the gate receipts, and $2500 for dismantling field seats after the bout.

Although the commission has held no official vote on the rules to govern the fight, Clulee said all the standing rules of the commission will be adhered to, which means the commission will name the referee.

Judge Rejects Petition to Stop Title Bout

Cleveland, May 14 (AP)—Judge Manuel Levine, presiding judge of the Court of Appeals today ordered the filing clerk of the court to reject an injunction petition filed today to stop the Schmeling-Stribling heavyweight championship boxing match here July 3. Judge Levine said his court had no original jurisdiction in an injunction proceeding.

Cleveland, O., May 14 (AP)—A petition to stop the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling heavyweight championship bout here July 3 was filed in appellate court here today in the name of Dave Fischer, an insurance agent.

Contending that the title match would be a prize fight and that prize fighting is illegal in Ohio, the petition described the proposed battle as a "public nuisance" and as an event which would attract a "dangerous and violent assemblage."

City Law Director Harold H. Burton commented on the petition, however, that the Schmeling-Stribling match would be a "boxing bout," not a prize fight.

The suit names as defendants Schmeling and Stribling, the City of Cleveland, the Boxing Commission, George H. Bender, manager of the Stadium; City Manager Daniel E. Morgan, and the Madison Square Garden of Ohio.

BROUILLARD AND MELLO READY

By RINGSIDE

Al Mello, New England welterweight champion, and Lou Brouillard of Worcester are both down to 147½ pounds for their 10-round championship bout which will be held at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Brouillard rules a 10 to 8 favorite in the betting. The odds were originally 10 to 7 with the Worcester warrior a choice, but they tightened up when Mello started to stiffen his sparring partners.

Mike Bonaglia of Italy and Andy Mitchell of California will collide in the semifinal. Phil Buccola sees a bright future for Bonaglia. Mitchell punched it out with Maloney at the Garden a couple of years ago. This bout is billed for seven heats.

Lud Abella of New York will take on Billy Lynch of Providence. Eddie (Kid) Sullivan of Walpole will oppose Young Nadeau of Somersworth, N. H. Harold Henderson of New York will take on Tony Senito of Worcester, while Joe O'Donnell of Roxbury and Frank Marto of Lawrence will step four frames in the opening bout. The other prelims are listed for five rounds each.

With the Argonne A. A. show set back until Monday on account of unfavorable weather conditions, the Garden now has the right of way in boxing for this week.

Jack Sharkey will windup his training at Jim Toland's Gym today. He will leave for New York tomorrow to see the 10-round bout between Tommy Loughran and Vittorio Campolo at the New York Garden. Sharkey will start training at Stillman's new gym in New York on Saturday.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, has Al Morro, his Pacific Coast heavyweight, battling Frank Morris on the Garden card. While in New York Buckley will look over several outdoor camps. Sharkey will pass up Orangeburg for a new training spot.

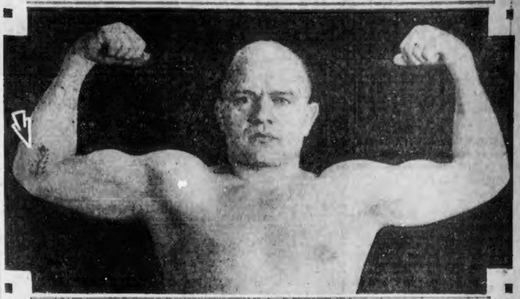
HAS SONNENBERG'S BRAND ON ARM



See that scar? COUNT ZARYNOFF carries it on his right arm as a memento of his first engagement with Gus Sonnenberg. Dynamite Gus and the Russian Cossack meet in the Boston Arena again tonight and great should be the shindy thereof. Wonder what Gus will decorate the Russian Terror with this time. Isn't wrestling a nice, gentle little pastime

Yankee Boss Unable to Find a Set-Up

St. Louis, May 14 (AP)—If there are any set-ups in the American League this year, Joe McCarthy, new skipper of the New York Yankees, hasn't seen them yet.

Marse Joe, paying his first visit to St. Louis as an American League pilot, explained today that he had not yet seen the Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers in action, but he called the other clubs "good ball teams."

Retzlaff Stops Gagnon in Fourth

Duluth, Minn., May 14 (INS)—Charlie Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight boxer, today claimed a knockout victory over Jack Gagnon, Boston. The finish came in the fourth.

Ball Players Feel Effects of Unemployment Wave

Chicago, May 14 (AP)—Minor league baseball players of good ability have swelled America's unemployed army by several hundred, Traveling Secretary Lou Barbour of the White Sox estimated today.

"Letters from players are coming in from all sections of the country asking for almost any kind of chances on clubs," Barbour said. "The rainy spell, poor receipts and the habit of former major league players to continue their careers in the lower class leagues have combined to throw hundreds of fair players out of work.

"One team in a league where the player limit stands at 15 or less reported that it had 60 volunteers for places."

A member of our Staff shopped London personally and bought about twenty different styles and types of Golf Shoes, ranging in price from $12 to $42, made by the most famous bootmakers of England and Scotland, and placed them before Charles H. Gibson, the Pro of Westward Ho!

All Labels, Prices and Identification Marks were removed, and the popular Pro of this picturesque sea-side links, picked Allan's of Edinburgh famous Thistle Brogue as his choice of the best Golf Shoe produced by Anybody at Any price.

And he told us Why. He liked the Last, with comfortable toe-room and ample "girth" across the ball and a "spring" to the bottom that made the 19th feel like the ninth.

He liked the Pattern and Design. The Perforated Thistle Wingtip, the Scotch Tongue, the full Calf Lining, the heavy Double Leather Sole and Riveted Spikes were all features that appealed to Charles H. Gibson, who is not only an excellent player himself, but has been selling Golf Shoes in his own shop for years.

James Allan's original Thistle Brogue cost us £4/10/0 ($21.42) in London, and we are showing it today in every Regal store window with the Regal Reproduction right beside it for $6.60.

In the Regal Reproduction the Last is identical in measurement and appearance and the Design is exactly the same. Our representative went to Glasgow to see Mr. Martin personally, and purchased the same Gorse Grain tannage used in the original shoe.

And this is only one of 25 Regal Reproductions of Famous High Priced Golf Shoes—Spiked leather soles—Cleated rubber soles—Moccasins and Bluchers—Imported Calfskins and Domestic Tannages, and they are all One Price $6.60.

CARDS OBEY RULES

DISCIPLINE IS GOOD FOR BALL CLUBS

By JOE CASHMAN

President Frank York of the Brooklyn Robins reads the riot act to his hired hands. He threatens to fine Dazzy Vance if the big pitcher doesn't start winning, and to trade several of his other stars if they don't start hitting.

Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Cubs in a statement, brief but emphatic, lets it be known that he is dissatisfied with the showing of his charges and will make drastic changes unless they snap out of their slump.

Such yarns make interesting reading, but they don't benefit the clubs concerned a little bit.

How different and how much more effective is the method employed by the management of the St. Louis Cardinals, when things aren't breaking just right for the champions, who, incidentally, open a two-game series with the Braves at the Wigwam this afternoon.

President Sam Breadon and Manager Gabby Street don't talk. They act. No warning is ever given. The Cards live up to the rules and perform at their best or out they go.

Cards Live Up to Rules or Suffer

The champs own a pitcher named "Dizzy" Dean. This young man in his first and only big league game last fall held the Pirates to three hits. Manager Collins of the Red Sox, who saw him work often in the Western League, rates him as the greatest young pitcher he has seen in 20 years. Members of the Athletics, whom he faced in an exhibition game in the South, predicted that he would win 20 games this year.

The Cards could use Dean; so could any other club in either league. Yet "Dizzy" is now back in the Texas League because he broke training rules.

Regulars receive no more consideration on this ball club.

"Chick" Hafey, most powerful and one of the most consistent hitters on the team, decided to be a holdout this year. He waited until the training season was nearly half over before reporting, and then refused to accept the contract offered him.

He threatened to return to California unless his demands were met and return he did, because his figures were refused.

Hafey Has Lost Over $2000 by His Attitude

Hafey finally agreed to terms about the time the season opened, but no fatted calf was killed for the return of the prodigal son, as is the custom on most clubs.

Instead, Hafey was informed that he couldn't play regularly until he rounded into shape and that a day's pay would be deducted from his salary for every day until he was fit to play. It is estimated that "Chick" is already out over $2000 as a result of holding out.

Taylor Douthit, veteran centerfielder, started the season in his regular berth. He fell into a batting slump and despite the fact that the club was winning, he was immediately benched. No ballyhoo. Just action.

Hornsby raves and the Cubs are having their troubles staying in the first division. York threatens and the Robins are finding it difficult to keep out of the cellar. The Cards act and are leading the league.

SURETTE SAVES U. S. BOXERS

New York, May 14—Henry Surette was the only Massachusetts winner in the International Amateur Boxing competition between the United States and Italy at Madison Square Garden last night.

The Bay State heavyweight, taking to the ring with the score 4-3 against Uncle Sam, pounded his way to an overwhelming victory over Luigi Rovitt to score the first and only Boston victory of the evening.

Previously, three other Boston and four New York boys had competed. The first three Bostoners lost their bouts—Henry Burns dropping a close decision in the 112-pound class, Steve Salek, losing in the lightweight division, and Dick Madden going down in the light heavyweight class.

Sarazen and Farrell Are Off for England

New York, May 14 (AP)—Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, former national open golf champions, are off together in pursuit of the 1931 British open championship.

They sailed early this morning to join the American contingent now in England and Scotland preparing to battle for the title at Carnoustie in June. Mrs. Catherine Farrell accompanied her son, making her first trip in 36 years back to her home at Mountrath, Ireland. Mrs. Sarazen also was in the party.

HORSES ON EDGE FOR DERBY

Louisville, May 14 (AP)—The thousands who elbow their way into Churchill Downs for the Kentucky derby next Saturday need have no fear of rainy weather. In a special forecast made by the weather bureau here today the prognosticator said the day will be fair and warm.

Louisville, Ky., May 14 (AP)—Final workouts today completed the training of the 12 or 14 three-year-olds which are expected to start Saturday in the 57th running of the $50,000 added Kentucky Derby.

A definite estimate of the size of the field cannot be made until the starting horses are named through the entry box tomorrow. No speed workouts will be attempted the day before the race, but the starters will be given brief warming-up gallops.

With a field of 14 or less almost certain, the Derby horses will be sent from the post from a starting gate for the first time in history. This assures a quicker start for the runners, which heretofore have generally been at the post many minutes before being sent away. The gate accommodates just 14 horses.

No fillies are expected to accept the issue Saturday. Each colt will carry 126 pounds over the mile and a quarter journey. Post time for the Derby, the fifth race, probably will be 5 p. m., Central standard time.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Entry of the Quaker Line into monthly service to and from the port of Boston was started with the arrival here of the San Clemente from Vancouver, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles with 1464 tons of general cargo and 2,000,000 feet of lumber.

Docking at Pier 50, Mystic wharves, she moves up to the Wiggin Terminal today to unload lumber. She will sail Sunday.

Next arrival of the line here will be the San Vincente, which will come in a month.

CRUDE RUBBER

The port of Boston continues to hold its position as the second port in the country in the importation of crude rubber, statistics of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce indicate. During the month of April, 1799 long tons of rubber were entered here.

MAIDEN TRIP

Returning from her first trip to the fishing grounds, the new trawler Maine of the Red Diamond Trawling Co. of Boston, facing unfavorable conditions, came into the Fish Pier with more than 79,000 pounds, caught off Georges Banks. Capt. Patrick Collins was in command. She is a sister ship of the Illinois.

BIG STURGEON

Caught in the nets of the auxiliary fishing schooner Corinthian, off the South Shoals, a 350-pound sturgeon brought into the Fish Pier yesterday attracted considerable attention. The large fish will give many pounds of caviar, which is in big demand at fancy prices.

On the Air

President Hoover will address the nation through the medium of radio three times within the last 10 days of May. On May 22, at 9 p. m., he will introduce, from Washington, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, recent winner of the Nobel Prize for Science, who will speak from California in connection with the opening session in N. Y. of the first annual assembly of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education. On the following day, Mr. Hoover will take part in the dedication of the Cornell War Memorial, broadcast on the CBS and NBC. A week later Memorial Day exercises will be broadcast from Valley Forge and Mr. Hoover will be principal speaker.

Radio has given birth to many novelties and has been the means for creating new professions. Far from being the least important of the new professions is the calling of the wandering guest artist. This species wanders around from program to program, hailed hither and thither, lauded and acclaimed, but is seldom affixed permanently to some program. However, many of these wandering guest artists do sign up with sponsors. For example, there is Irene Bordoni, Dodge sisters, Gus Van, Maurice Chevalier and Morton Downey. The latest member of the wanderers is Mae Questel, imitator of movie and radio stars, who continues her pilgrimage o'er WBZA at 9:30 this eve. . . . A new type of G. A. (guest artist) joins the R. Vallee session, WEEI at 8 tonight, when Cornelia Otis Skinner, daughter of the famous actor, offers her inimitable character sketches . . . Stanley Smith of the stage and screen, who is rumored to be flirting with a radio contract, will do a mike turn o'er WAAB at 11:30 this eve. Others on the same bill are Frances Shelley, musical comedy maiden, and L. Wolfe Gilbert, Tin-Pan-Alley-ist. . . . Florence Nightingale, first modern nurse, who inspired the founding of the Red Cross, will "speak" on the re-incarnation program o'er WEEI at 9 tonight.

PRAISE is due William J. Lawlor, WBZA control operator, for his sensitive ears. He was at the control board, recently, when he caught a distress signal from a trawler, crippled off the coast of Nova Scotia. He immediately communicated with the Charlestown Navy Yard, from where reports were sent to Nova Scotian guardsmen, and a disaster was averted.—M. G. M.

OUR DAILY FOOD

LAKE FISH

Great Lakes Fishing Industry on Colonel Goodbody's talk tomorrow, Stations WBZ at 8:45 A. M. and WEEI at 9:45 A. M.

Listening Post

BEGINNING June 1, a 15-minute program from CBS will come through WNAC, sponsored by a cigarette manufacturer, and will be heard nightly, except Sundays, at 7:45. With Morton Downey as star performer and Tony Wons (the scrap booker) for a master of ceremonies, the period promises much. Our own Jacques Renard is to wield the baton.

IN THE spirit of hospitality, NBC is arranging a short wave pickup tomorrow afternoon that will enable the King of Siam to enjoy a program from his native land. Bangkok is the home town of King Prajadhipok (which may be spelled wrong). His Majesty has a receiver hooked up in his White Plains, N. Y., quarters. He has been confined to his room, following the operation on his eyes, but can hardly wait to hear what's going on among his subjects.

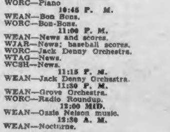
GRAHAM McNAMEE has been laid up with tonsilitis, but is back at work and preparing for the Kentucky Derby broadcast tomorrow. Graham just won't have those tonsils out, for fear he might become a soprano—or something.

* * *

SLOWLY BUT surely the fortune tellers, star gazers and such are leaving the air waves—by request in a few instances.

* * *



NAMES IS NAMES: Eddie Lord, new WBZ voice, is said to be a fourth generation descendant of a duke. A noble character he is, too.

DESPITE REPEATED efforts, broadcasters have not been able to persuade John Barrymore to do a microphone turn.

WHEN GERRY HARRISON goes on the waves tonight (WAAB at 10) to report gruntings of the big 'rasslers, he may reveal what he would like for a wedding present. He dons the shackles June 18 and fan letters have asked him what he would appreciate most. Janet Hoch is the bride-to-be.

REALISM OF sound is a big factor in dramatic air productions. A clanking chain is heard through our speakers as someone in the studio dangles a lady's necklace over a plate—thus preserving and adding to the reputation of a sound man at the station.

* * *

KIDDIES SHOULD only hear light amusing things, say Listening Posters who write in. It is therefore suggested that commercial sponsors and broadcasters bear in mind that early evening (Amos and Andy time for instance) is when murder bits, or crime discussion should be taboo. Those who write want the "colyum" to break a lance and get all lathered up about it.

been taken care of. It's money we—"

"Can't see why the money-concerns of such an organization as you describe are a thing separate and apart from its policies. They overlap. My selling-policies regarding an article can only be determined after I am thoroughly familiar with the article itself."

"In the theater, Mr. Rarick, that scarcely applies. Our production policies have nothing to do with our financial ones. We need an initial endowment of one hundred thousand dollars to put them into what we firmly believe will be a successful practice. We want you to be the man to have sufficient faith in those production policies to endow our baby."

Impudent youth! Well, what rebuttal had he? Plays were foreign affairs to him. Occasionally, he sat through one with Jenny. He had not seen "Herod's Mask." Doubtless it would have gone monotonously over his head. Music flowed into him, whereas the drama seemed merely to use his brain as a surface of impact. Jennifer liked the Follies and the rapid revues.

A thought smote Rarick.

"Young people, take my boy into this enterprise with you!"

If he had said, "Young people, take my howling red monkey into this enterprise with you," he could not have struck a more compelling silence across the faces of these three.

Interesting Him

"I've a boy. Youngster. Bright as a new nickel. I'd like him to sharpen his teeth, come vacation, on a few young people like you. I'd like to see him get interested in groups that will get him acquainted with some of the things I think he may be missing."

A glance, imbedded in smile, wound itself from one face to the other of the three.

"Your son is interested in the theater, Mr. Rarick?"

"I wouldn't say that, Miss Adelbert," snapped Rarick. "It is I who am interested in interesting him."

"I see."

Of course she did not see, nor did any of them, sitting there so politely mindful of the hand that held the money-bags. Nor did Rarick himself, for that matter. The need of his boy eventually coming into his affairs was more and more a pressing one, the inevitable contingency of primogeniture hovered closer; yet here he was, trying to foist him off on to a vague art-project. As it was, Avery had barely time to spare for these college years. Rarick was not minded to start him in overalls from the bottom up. Why teach a walking child to crawl? But little as Rarick could visualize his son cast into his future, the time was at hand when he must be tossed, as you would toss a youngster who must learn to swim, out into the monstrous sea of five-and-ten-cent things.

"Let my boy in on the ground-floor of this new-theater idea—agree to take him into your fold when he comes out of college—"

"Why, of course, Mr. Rarick, if he is interested. We would want to meet him. See what's on his mind. It could—er—of course be done. Always a place in a workshop like ours . . ."

"On that basis, then, and subject to specifications which Mr. Hellman will arrange at my dictation, you may consider that I will seriously take under advisement the matter of endowing your group."

The three young people who finally, walking on air, turned their faces toward the Eleventh Street cafe, left Rarick sitting there crouched deeply in the enormous chair which faced the organ.

Letter to Son

An idea had, for the moment, completely captured his fancy. What if the boy had somewhere imbedded in him a talent for this sort of creative thing? Not as a vocation. Naturally. But as an avocation. Something to keep him tinged at least with the adventurous quality of mind that flooded that young fellow Davies.

Avery must not be cheated of his walking-trip through the Pyrenees. There was plenty of time later for the two-feet-on-the-ground business of training him to be the son of one of the richest men in the world.

Presently Rarick began a letter to his son. Somehow, with the concrete pen on the concrete paper, the words began to clog in his brain. There were things that could not be broached out of a clear sky. Nothing had ever been said between father and son to prepare Avery for the popping of this notion into the head of his parent. The dread of seeming ridiculous in his son's clear eyes began to matter above everything in Rarick's tired brain as he sat there, his pen drying above the paper.

It was difficult, practically impossible, to convey to his boy that the idea prompted by the three avid young faces, and most of all by the fellow named Davies, had not to do with their little enterprise itself, but somewhere behind it all was a symbol . . . a symbol of some kind of rel[illegible] which he wanted for his boy.

One could not get that easily said, at [illegible] not without danger of a[illegible]aring ridiculous to a colle[illegible] in his teens, who cou[illegible]nt for a speed-boat as desperately as Avery had wanted for his.

The letter was to remain in the limbo of unwritten [illegible].

Daily True Story

And then Dick took her in his arms. She fought him off, weeping.

"But honey," he said. "I thought it was all made up between us. I wrote you that note."

"That note," she wept. "Cliff Dale was here. He told me about you and that—Renee. So you won't need to bother with fuller explanations. You've been seeing her all week—and now you're going to stick to the—one woman—monogamy. Why, you don't even know the meaning of the word! And you've come here to flaunt your marriage with that woman in my face!"

Asked Her Again
And Phyllis Consented

"Wait!" He held her trembling hands in his strong brown ones. "You have me all wrong. Did it occur to you that Cliff might be giving you a biased account of my affairs. Did it occur to you that he, too, might be in love with your fascinating self and anxious to marry you? Surely, I've been seeing Renee, every day since I left you I've been leaving her honorably, like a gentleman. It wasn't easy. I liked her. She liked me. But at last, she understood the difference between 'like' and 'love.' She understood, too, that my friendship for her can no longer exist under the circumstances. She has gone away—for our sake—yours and mine. If I'd followed your advice, merely leaving her without another word, there might have been a tragedy.

"She might have done something that would have destroyed our happiness forever. That's why I haven't telephoned you, or tried to see you. I wanted to finish this other thing—clean. Now I'm here asking for you, only you. I've gone to work in my father's factory, much to his amazement. All for you. Will you once more consider assuming the risk of marrying me? Please do."

She looked at him through tear-wet eyes. She felt the cool freshness of his cheek against hers, the warmth of his lips touching her own.

"Oh, darling," she said. "I'd marry you if you weren't the most perfect husband-to-be in the whole wide world."

DISCHARGING EAR

MRS. GEORGIA ADAMS, 211 Dover St., Boston, says: "I had suffered from a discharging ear and severe pains in my neck and head. I had been treated at a hospital but the Dr. there did not seem interested in my case and his treatment did not benefit me. The pain grew so severe that it seemed that I could not bear it. I told a Mrs. Mullen, who told me that Dr. Walsh had helped her and advised me to consult him. I did so and he gave me relief at once. And now the discharge has ceased and the pain has disappeared. I am so well pleased with Dr. Walsh and his treatment that I permit the publication of this statement in the hope of helping others who suffer as I did." Signed MRS. GEORGIA ADAMS.

The American Empire

It Girdles the Globe

Where is the center of the United States? Somewhere in Kansas, you might say. Wrong. It is in the Pacific Ocean, not far from the Hawaiian Islands.

However, your error is natural. Not one in a thousand Americans knows the extent of his own country and that for nearly six months a year the sun never sets on it.

Our most easterly point is not Maine, but the Virgin Islands. Our most westerly is not California, but Balabac, in the Philippines. To the north is Alaska and to the South Samoa.

We cover a good deal of land and water, and by stretching matters a little and including Marie Byrd Land in the Antarctic, our lower boundary comes close to the South Pole!

Primary Is Saved

The members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives stood up in their boots like men and repulsed the most desperate attempt made in recent years to tear down the direct primaries under which the people nominate public officers of their own choosing.

The sedulous and brazen attempt of these Republican Bourbons to carry us back to the repudiated era of the boss-controlled conventions was overwhelmed by a majority of two and one-half to one.

People make progress slowly in acquiring their rights. But once they acquire them, and know them to be sound, they are invariably firm in their refusal to relinquish them.

Now that these reactionaries have been administered the defeat their scheme deserved, they can be expected to fold their tents, efface themselves from the scene and leave the work of government in this State to be performed by progressive, well-meaning public officials.

We have the right to assume that the direct primaries will now stand for years without any more attempts to undermine them.

For Franklin Union

The Franklin Union has reached a crisis.

Its surplus of funds is drained. Its trustees, generous for years, have contributed to the extent which they believe their individual purses can stand.

Unless $30,000 can be raised by popular subscription, the Union will be obliged to discontinue its day courses of instruction and at the end of this school year will curtail its evening courses also.

This would be a tragedy.

Since the time that Benjamin Franklin himself left this fund for education to his native city, the Union has supplied education to many thousands of our boys in poor or moderate circumstances to whom no other form of education was available.

The people of Boston have been generous almost to a fault in the depressed period through which we have been emerging. But we believe they can be relied upon not to permit the collapse of this excellent institution which has had an honored place among us for generations.

Power, Rightly Used

Lightning hit the high tension wires up near Bellows Falls.

Instantaneously the "surge" of that shock was felt over the systems of the New England Power Company and the Boston Edison as far south as Providence.

Edison, fearing its supply from New England Power would be cut off, immediately jumped its own auxiliary power from 30,000 to 100,000 kilowatts—in other words, to the length of 130,000 horses—a remarkable feat of modern engineering—and not a house in its territory went dark.

Union of these enormous corporations no doubt has many advantages for the public good.

Push a button in northern New Hampshire and light is made available in the secluded Rhode Island farmhouse.

Pink Cheeks and Checks

On dipping into the future far as human eye can see, the editor of Aromatics Magazine beholds the business man of fifty years hence slapping on rouge and lipstick as freely as his stenographer. He will likewise perfume his apartment and, presumably, powder his nose.

Is that the pessimism of a cynical prophet or the optimism of a cosmetician?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

These Modern Lovers

FROM THE present outlook, the Younger Generation will leave a great many more footprints on the dance hall floor than on the sands of time.

According to a woman's count, she is always at least 10 to 15 years younger than all the men she went to school with. But then, women always WERE hazy about figures.

* * *

A stroll under the dalliance of the May moon used to inspire a man to love-making; but, now, just stepping into a sport car or sitting in a rumble seat seems to be all the inspiration he needs.

* * *

A change of air and a change of diet are an occasional luxury; but a change of heart and a new love-interest are, to some men an actual necessity, like a Spring tonic.

* * *

Women are expensive. The first woman cost Adam a rib; then she cost him his peace of mind, and finally his place in the Garden of Eden. A woman cost the King of Portugal his throne, and another woman cost Sir Walter Raleigh his head. Yet men complain of the modern woman who costs a man at the most just a little bit of heart-balm of alimony.

* * *

That dazed look in a bridegroom's eyes is merely his expression of astonishment at finding himself on the way to the altar, when he never meant to go beyond a little petting.

The flame of love never dies out in a man's heart; it merely turns, like a searchlight, on one woman after another.

Effrontery of certain foreign delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce, to suggest that the United States remit more of its war debts, raised the ire of Calvin Coolidge.

These were his words:

"Without considering at all the financial or moral obligation of foreign governments to pay their debts to our Government or the obligation of our Government to collect them, it is interesting to see what is involved in the argument that the debts should be canceled to increase trade. Fundamentally this means the most enormous subsidy to foreign commerce that was ever proposed. . . . We would be involved in subsidizing the trade of foreign people out of money collected from our own people. . . . If we adopted this principle, logically we should open our treasury to all the world."

There is a WARNING to the American people, an ULTIMATUM to meddlesome foreign visitors and a CHALLENGE to the Administration to consider "the OBLIGATION of our Government to COLLECT" these war debts.

Why should the United States, the ONE ENTIRELY INNOCENT PARTY in the Great War, be saddled with the WHOLE cost of the conflict?

THE "TWO-GUN" BOYS

Europe means to keep the two guns well loaded, and will do so, if we will lend the money. And probably we shall, being international easy marks.

Good old Mr. Prohibition, of course, must have HIS two guns. They came with him and we have had him and them ever since. Not much hope yet of getting rid of him or them. Perhaps some day. Who knows?

As for Crooked Politics, we had it when Bill Tweed was a baby, and we shall have it when our present crooked politicians are in their graves or crematorium jars. No hope of getting rid of those two guns, "Graft" and "Corruption."

And, of course, we have the old, reliable Two-Gun Elephant, and his are SOME guns. They never miss.

The Democratic Donkey does his best, but he shoots wild with one and crooked with the other. However, he is practicing.

We live in a two-gun age. So watch your step.

New York Day by Day

Chorus Girl Has Hopes

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 14—Artistically the Broadway chorus girl is living at the moment solely on hope. Even the most talented beauties have a slim chance for jobs. Dearth of musical shows is responsible. The waiting rooms of agencies are deserted.

Beauty experts such as Ziegfeld, Carroll and White do their own picking. The winners of beauty contests around the country are usually signed up at once and if there are no productions they are paid small retainers to hold them until a more auspicious day.

James Montgomery Flagg has perhaps given more beauties a stage start than any other individual not directly connected with the theater. They come to him as models and if he is not able to use them for illustrations he directs the promising ones to producers.

Ziegfeld has a leaning toward the flaming red head. Carroll prefers blondes and White the brunettes. Now and then some fortunate is drawn out of obscurity—a hat check girl, waitress or department store wrapper—but this is seldom. The majority are models for artists and dressmakers.

* * *

Applicants are usually inspected in the private offices of producers. They are asked to walk up and down in front of the producer's desk, turn this way and that, sing a few notes and perhaps execute a high kick or so. I happened to be in an office one day during such an inspection.

* * *

An eager wand of a brunette was going through here paces. She was in the nascency of youth, beauty and grace, but in pirouetting in a dance her ankle turned and she fell. Her embarrassment touched off a spell of hysteria. It was a magnificent display of emotion, and instead of the chorus she was cast in a dramatic role.

* * *

Stardom for the chorus beauty has been attained, but it is usually a fictional fancy. Yet for the self-respecting maiden it opens an avenue for highly successful marriage. Any number have graduated to chatelaines of Long Island mansions and French chateaus.

A thousand tales of not knowing one's neighbor are told in New York. Keats Speed was walking to his home, then on Central Park West, one evening. He fell in with a friend he had known intimately in the South as a boy. A block away Speed turned into an apartment house. So did the friend. They alighted from the elevator at the same floor. For six months they had been neighbors. Irvin Cobb and his wife met an interesting couple on shipboard. They began to converse from deck chairs. For two years they had lived on the same floor in a large Riverside Drive apartment building. Indeed only a wall divided their sleeping quarters.

On East 55th st. a little shop for women's clothes is called the Fourth Floor Back. That is, of course, its location. In the Village there is a pie shop called The Lovely Pie Parlor. But my choice for unusual names is that of a restaurant in the forlorn byways of Spittalfields in London called The Hip of a Cow.

* * *

The hisser in the theater used to inspire turning of heads, but not lately. Hissing is no longer out of the ordinary. It has become especially pronounced at plays charging high prices. In these days, audiences demand money's worth. And the greetings for a few fallen idols at the news reels sounds like the collective burst of steam pipes.

* * *

Then there is the famous headline of Roy Howard's cub days in Indianapolis: "Petite Little Dancer Ends Life."

* * *

Nothing is quite so comic as a Sealyham after a bath. Mine, freshly bathed, just came flying in from the kitchen, circled a divan a half dozen times in the manner of a whippet rounding a turn of the dog track, finally tumbled into a mystified squat and is off again hell-for-leather to shake the daylights out of a headless rubber doll. And if he doesn't stop flattening out on his stomach and whimpering every time he passes a lady Chow in the neighborhood he is going to get himself talked about too.

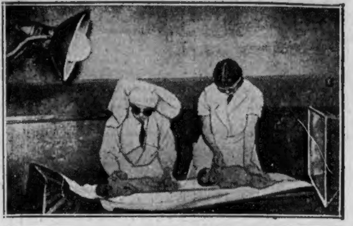
Taking Care of Children

We Might Do It More Often in This Country



LIGHT AND HEAT TREATMENT FOR BABIES

These light rays and heat rays are used more and more in England. In Berlin and other German cities thousands of babies are thus treated. The sun's actinic rays stimulate the blood, increasing the number of red cells to build up the child's health.

The King of England, by the way, applies these rays to his race horses, as do others. He won his first race of importance after many years of failure when one of his horses had been treated, all Winter, with these rays.

Little by little, science will learn how to protect the health of babies and, eventually, this, the richest country in the world, may protect its children as well as do the poorer countries of Europe.

We may even feel ashamed of the fact that 16,000 American mothers die in childbirth every year needlessly, because of neglect, our death rate in childbirth being the highest of any civilized nation on earth.

Listen, World! :: Argument

By ELSIE ROBINSON

The Chap Who Always Has One

Elsie Robinson

YOU'VE MET HIM—
THE CHAP WHO ALWAYS PUTS UP AN ARGUMENT.
It may not be a very noisy argument—
It may only be a few words—
Or a mean look—
Or a snooty snort—
Or a slight reddening of the ears—
But it's an argument, just the same,
And it serves as warning and protest—
That whatever you're FOR he's AGAINST.
You may make the most casual statement—
Like—"It's a fine day"—
Or the simplest suggestion, such as—
"Hadn't you better phone to see if he's in"?
Doesn't matter how obvious or simple your remark.
He'll come back at you contrary.
He'll deny it's a nice day—
He'll refuse to phone ahead.
And maintain that only saps ever phone ahead.
And the funny part of it is—
Until you mentioned it, he thought it was a grand day.
And had every intention of phoning ahead.
But since you beat him to it,
HE HAD TO TAKE THE OPPOSITE SIDE.
Now why are people like that?
Is it because they're naturally cussed?
Or so stuck on themselves that they simply must Put in their two cents, regardless?
Not entirely.
Being human they are, of course, cussed.
And conceited—all of us are.
But there's a deeper reason for their argument.
Than cussedness or conceit.
They argue because they're AFRAID.
There's a secret fear always gnawing at them,
The fear that they're not as impressive
And dominating and convincing as other people,
And that other people are on to it
And are going to laugh at them,
Or put something over on them.
And so, being constantly afraid,
And as self conscious as a pup with his first flea,
They're always on the aggressive—
Always trying to beat you to the clinch—
Always trying to prove their superiority to you,
And, even more particularly, to themselves.
Why do such people always put up an argument?
That's why.
And I've heard it said
That if you can get past that fear,
Make them feel that they needn't defend themselves,
Make them see that you respect and admire them.
And, even more important, that you need them,
That you can cure them of arguing.
Which, I admit, sounds grand,
And if you've got a Noble Soul and a lot of time
I hope you'll try it.
But I might as well hastily add
That for forty-seven years
I've been trying it myself
On a bunch of ornery humans,
And it hasn't dented 'em yet.
But maybe you'll be luckier.
